Group of 53 Declares Late President, if Living, Would Support Incumbent.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—A number of supporters of the Progressive party of 1912 tonight gave out a statement urging the election of President Coolidge and "earnestly" appealing "to the Progressives of 1912 to vote as they know, in their hearts, Theodore Roosevelt would vote."

"We affirm with complete assurance," the statement said, "that he would be vigorously supporting Calvin Coolidge, who exemplifies the elemental principles of public and private morality which shaped the great labors of Theodore Roosevelt in behalf of democratic civilization and human progress."

MISSING PADLOCK LEADS TO SEIZURE OF TWO STILL

Police, Passing Warehouse, Becomes Suspicious and Raid Follows—Two Men Arrested.

When Patrolman Morris of the Carr Street District at noon yesterday walked past a warehouse at 1125 Collins street that was presumed to be vacant, he noticed the padlock was missing from the front door and he heard noises inside. He hunted up the watchman. They tried the front door and found it locked from within.

Capt. Nally was informed and he and some of his men came and forced a rear door. Inside they found two men who said they were Morris Mansfield, 29, and Roy Cliff, 28, Peoria, Ill. Mansfield said he worked for a man at Peoria who wanted to rent the building to him and he and Cliff had come down to look it over.

The police looked further and found two complete stills, with a combined capacity of about 300 gallons, two steam-pressure boilers 7 feet high, 48 gallons of alcohol, 36 empty five-gallon cans and 1000 cartons, with a dozen empty pint bottles in each.

The two men could not explain how all this stuff happened to be there. They were held for investigation.

CONDEMNNS JUDGE CAVERLY'S
DECISION IN FRANKS CASE

Dean at Northwestern Says It "Lessened Restraints on Potential Homiciders."

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Assailing Judge Caverly's choice of sentences for Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr., slayers of Robert Franks, Judge John H. Wigmore, dean of the College of Law at Northwestern University, yesterday declared, in a published statement, remission of the extreme penalty lessened restraints "on the outside class of potential homiciders."

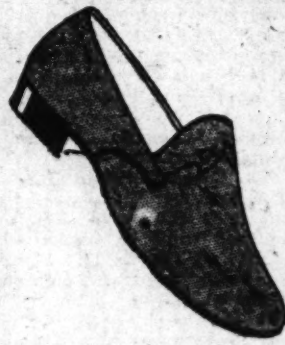

He further declared "the 21-year line has nothing at all to do with criminal law, nor ever did have."

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 27.—Dependent because of illness, Samuel Hale, a reputed wealthy steel man of Evanston, Ill., went into a small arroyo in the rear of the garage of a hotel near here yesterday and shot himself through the heart with a shotgun. Death was instantaneous. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death by suicide. Hale left a note addressed to "Dick," saying that he was a sick man and this was "the best way out." He had been here several days and was accompanied by his wife and a friend.

Corrosion weakens ordinary piping. Nothing more aggravating than a burst in the pipes in the midst of cold weather.

CHINESE STOWAWAYS 46 DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

Seven Men Taken to Bellevue
Hospital Under Immigration Law—One Dies.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Jabbering a confused tale of how they had journeyed half way round the world cramped in packing boxes and unfed for 46 days, seven Chinese were seized by police and sent to Bellevue Hospital, victims of starvation. They were charged with violating the immigration laws. One died at the hospital.
Three Chinese whom the police charge with attempting to smuggle the half famished Orientals into this country are also prisoners of the Government.

In the pockets of the unwelcome immigrants, police charge, they found cards of membership in the Hip Sing Tong, avowed enemies of the On Leongs. The men were being imported into the country, the police hold, so they might fight for the Hip Sings and then steal out of the United States very much in the same manner as they would have made their entrance yesterday had it not been for the police vigilance in Chinatown.

A vigorous denial came from Capt. Frederick Marshall of the Gaelic Prince, which was moored at Pier 4, Brooklyn, Saturday morning and on which the Chinese told the police they had come from the Orient.

"We have been out of Singapore 46 days," Capt. Marshall said. "We did not have a packing case aboard that was larger than 2x2, and how on earth could a man live in one of those things 46 days without food?"

"The tale that the police told me is absolutely ridiculous," he continued. "We had 39 Chinese who were members of the crew that recruited here in New York before we started on our voyage around the world last April, and in all probability these men are members of the crew. They all left here Saturday, after they were examined by officials of the customs service."

Medical authorities and the police are not so skeptical of the story as is Capt. Marshall. A doctor in charge at Bellevue Hospital, who examined the men, said it was possible that the men had made the voyage as they described it to the police. He said their physical condition indicated plainly they had little food in many days.

Kansas City Doctor
Invents New Truss

Discovery Heals Rupture
Without an Operation.

A new discovery which, experts agree, has no equal for curative effects in all rupture cases, is the latest accomplishment of the well-known Hernia Specialist, Dr. Andrews, 149 H. Koch Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. The extraordinary success of this new method proves that it holds and heals a rupture. It weighs only a few ounces, has no hard gouging pads, no elastic, no leg straps, no steel bands, and is as comfortable as a light garment. It has enabled hundreds of persons to throw away trusses and declare their rupture absolutely healed. Many of these had serious hernia rupture, from which they have suffered for years. It is Dr. Andrews' ambition to have every ruptured person enjoy the quick relief, comfort and healing power of his discovery, and he will send it on free trial to any reader of the Post-Dispatch who writes him. He wants one person in each neighborhood to whom he can refer. If you wish to be rid of rupture for good, without an operation, take advantage of the doctor's free offer. Write him today.

COLD THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can ward them off with Creomulsion, an emulsified crocodile that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, crocodile is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to crocodile, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the crocodile goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for warding up the system after colds of the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Better Than Calomel

Thousands Have Discovered
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't irritate the teeth like strong liquids or powders. They take hold of the bowels and quickly correct it. Why let the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong cathartics. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that laryngitis come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lumpy" and your "black" spots on the brain and face go the way of the spirit. 15c and 30c.

HONORED BY FELLOW WORKERS

Former Superintendent of Stamping Company Given Loving Cup for Long Service.

"Uncle Mike" Sutter, 72 years old, was somewhat taken aback when a small delegation of fellow employees, who worked with him during his 44 years' service at the St. Louis plant of the National Enameling and Stamping Co., called at his home, 2918A Dodder street, Saturday evening, and requested him to accompany them.

He was more surprised on reaching the North St. Louis Y. M. C. A. to find assembled in the auditorium there about 300 fellow employees, gathered to honor his long service, which ended about two weeks ago, when he voluntarily quit. There were speeches and presentation of a loving cup, with an inscription from the donors, a traveling bag and a toilet set for Mrs. Sutter.

Sutter's long service started in 1880 when, at 28, he began work at the St. Louis plant as a molder's helper. He arose through various jobs until he became superintendent of the "hot mill," a position he held 31 years, until his voluntary retirement. He lives at home with his wife, their six children having married.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The city manager plan form of government of Cleveland, O., was today in effect approved by the Supreme Court.

THE campaign to lift the debt of the Sisters of St. Mary and endow St. Mary's Hospital is drawing to a close. You now have an opportunity to participate in the charitable work the Sisters have been doing in St. Louis for the last 50 years. The Sisters have incurred a heavy debt to build institutions to care for the afflicted and the destitute. They are appealing to you to aid in relieving them of their financial burden.

You can do your duty toward this humanitarian service by taking out a five-year endowment insurance policy for a liberal amount payable to the Sisters. The campaign committee, composed of ecclesiastical authorities and business laymen, have adopted the endowment insurance plan because it is a businesslike method of raising the fund.

A Policy for Charity

FIVE-YEAR endowment policies are being issued in amounts of $250.00 or more to persons between the ages of 10 and 70 years. These policies are payable to the Sisters of St. Mary. Sound business reasons prompted the committee to adopt this Insurance Plan, some of them being:

- 1—There is absolutely no expense to the Sisters of St. Mary for collecting this fund. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has placed its entire St. Louis organization of more than 400 trained men at the command of the Sisters to establish this endowment fund.
- 2—The necessity for the Sisters to create an organization to handle the administration of this fund over a period of five years has also been eliminated by this Insurance Plan. The insurance company, with its well organized administrative staff, is handling all the collections over the five-year period and also keeping the fund intact so that the money will be paid to the Sisters in a lump sum. Arrangements are made to furnish the Sisters of St. Mary with a monthly accounting of the fund.
- 3—Under this gradual-payment plan the fund is protected against the death of any of the contributors. In case of death the full amount of the policy is paid to the Sisters and no further payments are collected on the policy.
- 4—A subscription to the St. Mary's Endowment Fund on the Insurance Plan, in case of your death, relieves your estate of any liability. The insurance company assumes this risk.

The Sisters have for years patiently and uncomplainingly been doing a worthy work in nursing the sick and relieving the distress of the helpless. They have kept faith with the public. They ask no earthly reward. With your aid they can do more. Help the Sisters NOW, when help is needed most.

Your policy today may restore hope and life to some afflicted child.

COOLIDGE HAS LA FOLLETTE LIKELY TO GE

Observer Gives G. O. and Democrat
toral

By CHARLES MICHELSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-
Dispatch and New York World.
CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Unless John W. Davis gets considerably more than the 113 electoral votes, which are the total of the solid South and the border States, I do not think of attempting a survey of the probabilities in every State west of the Mississippi; that the presidential election is going into Congress.

To put it another way, the probabilities are against La Follette's getting as many as 113 votes out of the West, including Wisconsin, of course, and I have yet to hear any serious thought that the third ticket has even a remote hope of carrying any State in any other section. Of course the campaign has still a week to run, and, in the Middle West, at least, there is no question but that La Follette is gaining steadily. If that crescendo is going on further west, there is at least a possibility that he may attain the decisive figure, for State after State toward the setting sun is so close that any serious increase in the third ticket vote will give it to the Wisconsin candidate. This is true of Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, California, Washington, and even Idaho. The other States—Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota and Nevada—seem almost sure for La Follette, and, in Montana, I estimate his chance to be better than that of Coolidge.

These estimates, of course, are based on the way things stood at the particular time they were under inspection. A dozen things may have changed or may change; even the weather is an important and, in some States, a determining factor.

Gives "Mixed Impressions." One comes out of the West with mixed impressions; wonder at the extent of the La Follette sentiment and at the fervor in his disciples, mingled with a feeling that in many States he comes just to the verge of success without being able to get "over the top"; amazed at the almost total disappearance of the Democratic party in so many States; where it has been a potentiality in nearly every previous election; and a realization that the personality of the candidates is the smallest factor in the problem.

This is as true of La Follette as of Coolidge or Davis. To the Far West he represents only the embodiment of protest, the spirit of revolt against things and parties as they are. Any one of a half dozen political figures could have rounded the people as much or more. Borah or Kenyon or Norris would have had an equal appeal—perhaps a greater appeal in some States, like California, where there is no great radical sentiment and where these men stand for something steadily than is typified by the turbulent Wisconsin Senator, about whom they know little except that he has been against administration after administration, regardless of whether they were of his own or the opposite political complexion.

Hiram Johnson might have been as popular a champion of the change the Western people want, if it had not been for his avoidance of the Newberry issue and the belief that, in the two years of the Harding regime, he came too far under the influence of the stand-pat administration. Johnson would have held California surely as La Follette has Wisconsin, and the rest of the Western territory knew him as well as it knows the Wisconsin Senator.

The Far West isn't excited about the Each-Cummins law or the other details of the La Follette creed; it simply has the feeling that the big financial figures and the big business they capture have been getting too much from the Government, and La Follette furnishes the means of expressing their indignation and weariness at the way things have gone.

La Follette "Extreme" 111 Votes. The extreme of the La Follette hope, so far as the electoral college is concerned, is 111 votes, which constitutes the total vote of Wisconsin and everything west of the Mississippi except, of course, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, which appear to the South. They do not allow Coolidge a single vote in this larger half of the American territory; not even Kansas, affecting to claim that as a doubtful State.

That might not have been an impossibility had La Follette chosen to do his campaigning in the West instead of the East. The future of his cause now has attained to such magnitude in nearly all the States in this section that it only required the physical presence of the man himself, in my opinion, to give him the majority.

At it is, La Follette may get half the votes he hoped for, which makes it necessary that Davis shall carry New Jersey and Indiana or their equivalent—Rhode Island, Delaware, Arizona and New Mexico, in lieu of New Jersey, for example—to prevent Mr. Coolidge's election. Arizona, New Mexico

COOLIDGE HAS EDGE IN WEST, LA FOLLETTE GAINING, DAVIS LIKELY TO GET FOUR STATES

Observer Gives G. O. P. 62, Independents 42 and Democrats 17 of 121 Electoral Votes.

By CHARLES MICHELSON, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World. CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Unless John W. Davis gets considerably more than the 183 electoral votes, which are the total of the solid South and the border States, I do not think, after attempting a survey of the probabilities in every State west of the Mississippi, that the presidential election is going into Congress.

To put it another way, the probabilities are against La Follette's getting as many as 83 votes out of the West, including Wisconsin, of course, and I have yet to hear any serious thought that the third ticket has even a remote hope of carrying any State in any other section.

Of course the campaign has still a week to run, and, in the Middle West, at least, there is no question but that La Follette is gaining steadily. If that crescendo is going on further west, there is at least a possibility that he may attain the decisive figure, for state after state toward the setting sun is no closer than the particular time they were under inspection. A dozen things may have changed or may change; even the weather is an important and, in some States, a determining factor.

Gives "Mixed Impressions." One comes out of the West with mixed impressions; wonder at the extent of the La Follette sentiment and at the fervor in his disciples, mingled with a feeling that in many States he comes just to the verge of being without being able to get "over the top," amidst at the same time the most total disappearance of the Democratic party in so many Commonwealths where it has been a potentially in nearly every previous election, and a realization that the personality of the candidates is the smallest factor in the problem.

This is as true of La Follette as of Coolidge or Davis. To the far West he represents only the emblems of political parties, the spirit of revolt against things as they are. Any one of a half dozen political figures could have stood the people as much or more. Borah or Kenyon or Norris would have had an equal appeal—perhaps a greater—than any of the States, like California, where there is no great radical sentiment and where these men stand for something steadier than is typified by the turbulent Wisconsin Senator, whom they know little except that he has been against administration after administration, regardless of whether they were of his own or the opposite political complexion.

Hiram Johnson might have been as popular a champion of the change the Western people want, if it had not been for his avoidance of the Newberry issue and the belief that, in the two years of the Harding regime, he came too far under the influence of that regime to administer justice. The fact that he held California, assuredly as La Follette has Wisconsin, and the rest of the insurgent territory knew him as well as it knows the Wisconsin Senator.

The far West isn't excited about the "Ech-Curran" law or the other details of the La Follette creed; it simply has the feeling that the big financial figures and the enterprises they captain have been getting too much from the Government, and La Follette furthers the means of expressing their indignation and weariness at the way things have gone.

La Follette "Extreme" 111 Votes. The extreme of the La Follette hope, so far as the electoral college is concerned, is 111 votes, which constitutes the total vote of Wisconsin and everything west of the Mississippi except, of course, Missouri, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana, which appear to the South. They do not allow Coolidge a single vote in this larger half of the American territory, not even Kansas, affecting to class that as a doubtful State.

Wyoming, perhaps Nevada, and, more remotely, Nebraska, are the only Western States in which there appears to be any chance for Davis. The Republicans have worked the terror of the Congressional election to the utmost in the West, elaborating on Col. George Harvey's "Coolidge or chaos" theme, and it may have been ineffective among those who accepted the picture of a nation in a state of bewilderment, being tossed about on the waves of uncertainty, with business in a panic and anarchy looming just ahead. Actually, a failure of the electoral college to produce none of these lurid effects. But, as already indicated, that contingency only arises if Davis gets New Jersey and Indiana, or some equally good combination.

It is impossible to prophesy accurately the destination of all or even most of the Western States, so close is the struggle in them. But it should not come far from these totals: Coolidge 62; La Follette 42; Davis 17. The inclusion of Kansas in the Coolidge column accounts for the total being 121 instead of 111. Kansas ought to go for Coolidge, although Jonathan Davis, the Democratic Governor, probably will be elected and one or two more Democratic Congressmen are indicated. William Allen White may disturb this line-up by becoming Governor, but it is more likely that by taking a greater vote from the Republicans, he will merely insure the election of the Democrat.

Nebraska I give to John W. Davis. The Republican scuff at this, saying that the fight is between Coolidge and La Follette, but Gov. Bryan is by no means devoid of strength in his own State and the Democratic farmers will be slow, I think, to turn him down, not only on his own account but because of William Jennings Bryan, who has bent all his energies to save his brother there and Nebraska is still under the spell of the "coyote" woman campaign.

Nebraska will cast about 425,000 votes and it is generally accepted that whoever gets 150,000 will win. Hitchcock, with the Germans, labor, the drys, and the women, has about 148,000 votes for Senator two years ago, and it is difficult to see how any smaller Democratic vote can be cast this time. There is no question of Norris getting the senatorship again. Coming North, we reach Iowa, another State where the battle is so close that all three parties claim to see victory ahead. But there are indications there of a move by the faint-hearted Democrats to throw the State to La Follette. In any of these States, it makes but little difference if La Follette or Davis gets it, for the effect will be the same if it is a question of merely stopping Coolidge and sending the election to Congress.

Five States to La Follette. Five States in a row I give to La Follette: Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana. Wisconsin has never been a Democratic State, consistently insuring for a long time and the biggest single element in its population is German. To win for Coolidge, the Republicans must carry Minneapolis by 30,000, and this is not on the cards. But the State of St. Paul will vote whatever Coolidge majority the big city gives, and the rural part of the State, hopelessly Farmer-Labor, has the decision.

North Dakota has never been lost to the insurgents except where the Republicans and Democrats made common cause against them, and that does not do so in a presidential year. South Dakota is not quite so bad, but had enough, in my estimation, to be safely for La Follette. Montana, where Senator Thomas J. Walsh is having the fight of his life, even with all the help the La Follette people can give him, plus his own party, has admittedly more Republican votes than Coolidge votes among its population, nearly all miners, farmers and railroad men. A twisted ticket, on which there are two sets of La Follette electors, insuring the loss to the candidate of one or the other, is the only hope of Coolidge getting the State.

Idaho, thanks to Borah, may stick to Coolidge. But, with Borah off enjoying his campaign fund investigation, which saves him from either making or declining to make speeches for the Republican ticket, on which he is again a candidate for Senator, it is by no means sure that Idaho will not renege La Follette. However, the State seemed for Coolidge as when I was there and probably still is.

TURKEY VIOLATES LAUSANNE PACT, GREECE ASSERTS

New Crisis in Near East Focuses Attention as League Council Meets in Brussels.

WHOLESALE ARRESTS IN CONSTANTINOPLE Plight of Greeks in That City Threatens Good Relations Between Athens Government and Turkey.

By the Associated Press. BRUSSELS, Oct. 27.—The extraordinary session of the council of the League of Nations, convened primarily to discuss the dispute between Great Britain and Turkey over the Iraq frontier and Mosul, was opened here this afternoon by Paul Hymans of Belgium, president of the council, in a speech welcoming the members of the council to Brussels.

In addition to the boundary dispute the council will be asked to consider the alteration between Turkey and Greece over the exchange of population as considered by the Lausanne treaty. M. Politis, representing Greece, arrived from Paris today with Aristide Briand, who represents France on the council. Lord Parmoor, the British member, was accompanied by Sir Cecil Hurst of the British Foreign Office, who took such a prominent part recently at Geneva in framing the famous protocol for the pacific settlement of international disputes.

The dispute between Turkey and Greece is what statesmen who framed the Lausanne treaty frankly have termed one of the most crucial decisions in history and which threatens to create serious complications in the Near East, according to League of Nations spokesmen, this afternoon.

That decision—arrived at as the most practicable means for avoiding war between Greece and Turkey—was the arranging for the compulsory exchange of populations between Greece and Turkey—that is to say, sending the Greeks in Turkey back to Greece and the Turks in Greece back to the territory of Islam.

Greece now contends that Turkey is violating the terms of the treaty of Lausanne by making wholesale arrests of the Greeks in Constantinople who are exempted from the exchange arrangement, provided they have established themselves in Constantinople before 1916. It is asserted that Greece looks upon the situation as extremely grave, unless Turkey shows signs of meeting Greece half way and affording some protection to Hellenic residents in Constantinople.

The league officials are worried because they are not sure that Fethi Bey and his Turkish associates will be able to carry out any discussion of the Greek charge, as the meeting of the council of the league was called especially to consider the dispute between Great Britain and Turkey over the Iraq frontier and the Greek problem has come at the last moment.

The plight of the Constantinople Greeks and Greece's appeal under the league covenant that the controversy threatens to disturb the good relations between the nations entirely overshadowed for the moment that back of the Iraq dispute lies a scramble for the oil fields of the Mosul vilayet. In the British-Turkish dispute the Belgian newspapers emphasize the oil aspect of the Mosul problem. The Nation Beige says that Turkey hopes to win her fight to keep Mosul with the help of the United States, "which is more attentive than any other nation in all phases of the petrol war."

LEAGUE ADVOCATES OF BOTH PARTIES URGE VOTES FOR DAVIS TO AID WORLD PEACE

Leaders in Law, Education and Business Condemn G. O. P. for Breaking Pledges and Declare League Is Live Issue.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—The League of Nations, according to a manifesto issued by a group of well-known lawyers, educators and business men, is a living issue in the present campaign that those who believe in the principles of the league—even if they feel that its present form should be changed—should support John W. Davis, its set forth.

The League of Nations Nonpartisan Association also issued what amounts to an appeal for the Democratic party. The association is a group of 11 Republican Senators, according to a survey just completed, could be counted upon to support their party's platform plank favoring American membership in the World Court. All 19 Democratic Senators who answered a questionnaire on the matter pledged themselves in the affirmative.

Among the signers of the League of Nations manifesto, which recalls the famous document signed by 31 Republicans in the 1920 campaign, are Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard; former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker; Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the United States Railroad, and Major-General Henry T. Allen. Both Republicans and Democrats are on the list of signers.

The signers of the document point out that Republicans who favor American participation in establishing international peace, but who for other reasons desire the election of President Coolidge, have declared that the question of American attitude toward the international council tables does not enter into the present campaign.

"Our purpose in this statement," they proceed, "is to show that every such assertion is a perversion of essential truth, intended to mislead the many voters who regard America's support of every concerted effort for world peace as the most important question of policy which the question of American attitude toward the international council tables does not enter into the present campaign."

The manifesto goes on to point out that Coolidge has declared in his first message to Congress that the League was a closed incident. He had made it clear that he would seek no modifications of the league so as to make it acceptable to the party which he had just defeated. He invited the attention of all voters to the fact that he did not care to commit himself at present time. Senator Borah of Idaho said he did not consider himself bound by the plank, but that he favored an international tribunal.

The signers, in addition to those mentioned, are: Edwin A. Alderman, Missouri; Charles C. McNary, Oregon; William C. Clegg, New Mexico; and William C. Clegg, New Mexico.

man, president, University of Virginia; John G. Agar, New York; Henry de F. Baldwin, New York; Charles C. Burlingame, former president of the New York Board of Education; James Byrne, former president of the New York Bar Association; Joseph P. Cotton, New York; Frederic R. Coudert, New York; Homer S. Cummings, Connecticut; Franklin W. M. Cuthren, New York; Norman M. Davis, former Under-Secretary of State; Cleveland H. Dodge, New York; Stephen P. Duggan, director, Institute of International Education; Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College; Edwin F. Gay, professor of economic history, Harvard University and former president of the New York Evening Post; George Gray, Judge International Permanent Court of Arbitration; Virginia C. Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard College; Jason Johnston, former Attorney-General of the United States; Charles H. Haskins, dean of the Harvard Graduate School; Walker D. Hines, former Director-General of Railways; John G. Milburn, former president of the New York Bar Association; Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey; Robert Grierson, former Ambassador to Japan; Morgan J. O'Brien, former Judge of the Supreme Court of New York; William Church Osborn, New York; Albert Rathbone, New York; James T. Shotwell, professor of history, Columbia University; Mordecai Storey, former president of the American Bar Association; M. Carey Thomas, president emerita, Bryn Mawr College; Henry Van Dyke, former Minister to the Netherlands; Mary E. Woolley, president of Mt. Holyoke College.

G. O. P. Senator Canvassed. The League of Nations Nonpartisan Association wrote letters to the Republican Senators asking them if they would support the Republican plank for the World Court and to the Democrats with respect to the position of Davis.

The Senators who replied that they would support the plank were: McNary of Connecticut, Edge of New Jersey, McKinley of Illinois, Cummins of Iowa, Capper of Kansas, Hale of Maine, Couzens of Michigan, Willis of Ohio, Stanford of Oregon, and others of West Virginia and Maryland.

The Senators who said they would not support the G. O. P. plank were: Frankfurter of North Dakota, Pepper and Reed of Pennsylvania, and several others who said they did not care to commit themselves at present time. Senator Borah of Idaho said he did not consider himself bound by the plank, but that he favored an international tribunal.

Edward A. Filene, Boston Merchant, Declares for Davis. Speaking at a dinner in Washington, D. C., Oct. 27, Edward A. Filene of Boston, the merchant who inaugurated profit-sharing with his employees in this country and who has recently established the "Filene Peace Award" for John W. Davis for President and against Coolidge.

Montana and Nevada—42 votes. For Davis—Nebraska, Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming—17 votes. It is not with any great confidence that this table is adduced. In all the 18 States there is only one, Wisconsin, that can be put down as a certainty. The others are doubtful in varying degrees.

RUSSIA ON WAY TO RECOVERY, SAYS BISHOP BLAKE HERE

Asserts, Extreme Communism Has Broken Down and Private Business Is Being Restored.

EXPLAINS HIS PLEDGE OF FINANCIAL AID Declares Orthodox Church Was Bankrupt and Needed Funds to Train Men for Priesthood.

A Russia rapidly rehabilitating itself, but a Europe that cannot recover without American aid, is being pictured in a series of addresses before St. Louis church and civic organizations by Bishop Edgar Blake of the Methodist Episcopal Church, whose episcopate embraces the European states bordering the Mediterranean, together with Northern Africa, with headquarters in Paris.

As to Russia, Bishop Blake can speak with the authority of an observer lately returned from that country, where he renewed observations and strengthened impressions made a year before, when he visited the land of the Bolsheviks as the accredited representative of his church. Upon that memorable visit he astonished the ecclesiastical and lay world by pledging $50,000 to the rehabilitation of the Russian orthodox church.

Conditions Improving. "Conditions in Russia are rapidly improving," Bishop Blake told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday. "Extreme communism has broken down, and private property is coming back. Three-fourths of the shops of Moscow are privately owned, and the idea of nationalizing food and no longer take from the farmer his surplus. Industry has become modified on a capitalist basis. But foreign capital is needed, in order to rehabilitate industry and develop resources. In this respect the Bolsheviks are ready to make any reasonable concessions to induce capital to enter."

"It is significant that Russia is the first of the warring countries to get back on a sound monetary basis. The gold ruble is backed by a sound gold reserve, and is the only money in Europe quoted above the American dollar."

"The transportation system is vastly improved. One may obtain daily sleeping car and dining car service from Riga to Moscow. Through service obtains from Petrograd to the Caucasus and Crimea. The Transiberian Railroad is open and running regularly. There is a daily, except Sunday, airplane service from Koenigsberg to Moscow. I made the 900-mile trip in a Fokker plane, with an English engine in 3 hours and 5 minutes."

"The churches of Russia are open. Fifty thousand priests are at work. As a result of the money advanced within the past year, through our pledges, the Theological Academy of Moscow and the Theological Academy of Petrograd have been reopened, and eight other theological schools are shortly to reopen."

"There is a striking intellectual awakening. Formerly 82 per cent of the people were illiterate; now the Bolsheviks are trying for universal education. Illiteracy has been abolished in the Red army, which can be said of the only army in the world. Incidentally, its morale and personnel are as good as any."

COOLIDGE APPEALS TO WAR VETERANS TO UPHOLD POWER OF SUPREME COURT

Says Tribunal Is "Shield Against Extremes of Temporary and Ill-Advised Sentiment"—Calls This a Time of Crisis.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—Col. Harford McNider, former commander of the American Legion, and now national chairman of the Republican Service League, conducting campaign activities for the Republican National Committee among the war veterans, made public yesterday a letter from President Coolidge "to the Service Men and Women of America," appealing for united opposition to the "current attacks upon the fundamentals of our institutions."

I appeal to you who in the past have proved worthy of all reliance to stand united and unyielding against this menace to our institutions," the President's letter said in alluding to the proposal of the La Follette independent group to limit the powers of the Supreme Court.

"Although we are living now in peace, yet the very fundamentals of our Government, in whose defense you offered your lives, are again under attack. The nation turns to you for the same leadership which you gave to it in war."

The President's letter follows: "To the Service Men and Women of America. From a number of quarters requests have recently come to me to address the American men and women of the country, with the purpose of appealing particularly to them to continue in fullest measure their patriotic interest in public affairs. Having in mind the devoted service which the American men and women of the country have rendered in the supreme crisis of the nation, I am glad to address myself to them in this behalf."

"In common with all true Americans, I entertain sentiments of profound pride in the men and women of the country, who have given to the preservation of the nation and its liberties. Your services have made all of you objects of the pride and admiration of your neighbors, and the community in which you live. Your sacrifices and achievements assure that you will always be accorded a large authority of leadership, inspiration and high example."

Another Chapter in Service. "Having proved your loyalty and readiness to serve your country in war, you have opportunity to augment that service by assuming active responsibility in connection with the troubles and difficulties which inevitably follow a great national crisis. Although we are living now in peace, yet the very fundamentals of Government in whose defense you offered your lives are again under attack. The nation turns to you for the same leadership which you gave to it in war."

"The high confidence and esteem in which the nation holds you gives assurance that your active leadership in public affairs will be a vitally important and beneficial influence. There is urgent need to awaken a new and universal interest in national affairs, and to urge upon every citizen the acceptance of his full responsibility to his Government and its welfare. Many among you have given the best of your life and strength to your country. Thousands of you, maimed and broken, must live through the war so long as life remains vital. Because of what you have already given, you must continue to give in order to make certain that your deeds and sacrifices shall not have been in vain. If this Government of ours is worth fighting for, it is worth giving of your best to maintain. If it is a beneficent and a blessing to this generation, then it should be preserved and passed on to future generations, that it may also bless them."

"I referred to the current attacks upon the fundamentals of our institutions. I am alluding, of course, to proposals which have been brought forward looking to the destruction of the Supreme Court as an equal and co-ordinate factor in our governmental system. The assignment to that court of the great and vital part which it plays between our organization and all other governmental systems that have preceded it. The Supreme Court was created and given its priesthood of the church which demands between 2500 and 3000 new priests yearly."

special functions, with the intent that it should stand always as the bulwark and defense of minorities. It is our shield against the passions of the moment, the extremes of temporary and ill-advised sentiment. To deprive it of the place it holds, and to substitute nothing for it, would be a reactionary step so serious as to constitute a national calamity. Indeed it would be nothing less than a revolution in our forms and procedures. It would at one stroke deprive us of guarantees which are the last support of the individual's right.

"Unrestrained Experimentation." "The accomplishment of such a purpose, particularly in a time of unrest and at the behest of factions which are bent upon inaugurating an era of ill-considered and unrestrained experimentation in governmental methods would be more than a disaster. It would undoubtedly prove the first of a series of disasters. It might mark the beginning of a process of institutional disintegration which, once fully started, could not be stopped in time to save our governmental structure. For this reason I deem the present a time of crisis to the country. The issue has been made, and unless the people shall be given their answer in unmistakable terms and by an overwhelming voice, there is danger that it will continue to be pressed more and more urgently by the forces of extremism. In the face of such a controversy, perhaps covering a considerable period of years, it would be well-nigh certain that no effective program could be made along the lines of moderation and construction which the sound judgment of the nation desires and which is followed."

"For these reasons I appeal to you who in the past have proved worthy of all reliance to stand united and unyielding against this menace to our institutions. I address you thus in full confidence that your response will be unmistakably as patriotic and as unselfish as it was when you were called to service on the field of battle. In which you have lived in the service of your country, and in the service of your fellow men, you have shown your devotion to the cause of peace and order."

Coolidge Makes Radio Address to Jewish Charities. By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Adaptation of business methods in charity work was praised by President Coolidge last night in a talk over the radio to a meeting in New York City of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropic Societies.

"Spread of the 'community chest' system of financing benevolence, philanthropies and charities," Mr. Coolidge said "has not only eliminated the waste of indiscriminate charity," but has accomplished much in the service organization of these works of human helpfulness."

"The best help that benevolence and philanthropy can give," the President said, "is that which induces everybody to help himself. Nothing is finer than the open hand and the generous heart that prompts free and unselfish giving. But modern social science knows, also, that ill-directed charity is often directly responsible for encouragement of pauperism and mendacity."

"The best service we can do for the needy and the unfortunate is to help them in such a manner that their self-respect, their ability to help themselves, shall not be injured or augmented."

Mr. Coolidge referred to the "community chest" as "among the noblest monuments of virtue and the adoption of it as the basis of the federation's charity system characterized as a 'fine accomplishment.' He praised the federation for setting up an example of 'successful, practical, helpful business administration' which he declared is a monument to the 'independent and self-reliance' of the Jewish people."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Advices Fellow Hebrews.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MR. DAVID BACHRACH, a prominent citizen of Kansas City, wrote a letter to Mr. G. F. Newberger, treasurer of the Democratic State Committee, asking his opinion of the attitude of the Democratic party towards the Ku Klux Klan and, particularly, what advice he would give to his Jewish friends with regard to Dr. Nelson's candidacy. In view of the charges that have been made against him and his denial of them, Mr. Newberger, prominent in Jewish circles, said in his reply:

"I thank you for your letter of the 22d. It is a hopeful sign when those of us who are members of a minority segment are conscious of the necessity of concerted political action, irrespective of party affiliation, in defense of the rights of all."

"I am sure you know there are no considerations that would induce me to take part in a campaign where these constitutional rights were not vigorously defended."

"If the Democratic party has ever failed to express itself in unmistakable language in its attitude on this question, I fail to find any record of it. If it ever does, then I cease to be affiliated with it."

"I have said in private conversations, and I now take occasion to repeat, that when we of the Jewish faith or those of any other minority group, be they of foreign birth or descent, Catholics or negroes, fail to support our defenders, we need neither expect, nor are entitled to defense. And it might be well at this time to call your attention to the marked contrast between the vigorous statements of John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential candidate, on this subject as against the studied or perhaps expedient silence of Calvin Coolidge, his Republican opponent."

"I have made a thorough investigation of the charges against Dr. Nelson. I am convinced that an attempt has been made to make him the victim of a foul political conspiracy. I believe he is as free from taint as either you or I."

Anti-Nelson Conspiracy a Boomerang.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE recent attempt to discredit Dr. Nelson in St. Louis by the Republican State Chairman in the publication of certain affidavits appealing to the religious prejudices of the voters of this State and the rebuttal and sworn testimony of certain reputable citizens interested in fair play, has established to my satisfaction that all fair-minded citizens should resent such an unwarranted procedure.

Dr. Nelson's refusal to become panic-stricken—his considerate yet dignified and concise reply in the manner which has characterized his entire campaign—filling his speaking dates and his plans made, must be disconcerting to the conspirators. It has at least shown that Dr. Nelson is made of sterner stuff, and is gubernatorial timber.

I have always voted the Republican ticket and I have not at the present time any unkind feeling toward Sam Baker, but I can not condone such methods as employed by Gov. Hyde and his managers, and will say if Dr. Nelson gets only one vote in St. Louis, he assured it was cast by me.

"Listening In."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

LAST Saturday I had the pleasure of listening in to the address of the Hon. John W. Davis, the candidate of the sound platform, the man who gives you facts, and notwithstanding his accredited affiliation with the "House of Morgan," will, if elected, put these ideas into practice.

Last Thursday I heard our president, Mr. Calvin Coolidge, and with all due respect to the gentleman, I was bored by his self-satisfied manner in relating the wonders of the present administration, losing sight of the blunders.

Last evening I heard the Hon. Mr. Wheeler, and while I must admit he is intelligent, my impression of him was his delivery was very Bohemian.

Having heard all three I am content to stick to Mr. Davis. True, I have always been a Democrat, but mark me, not so wedded to my party to allow my vote to be cast regardless of the incompetence of the candidate. No, I have read constantly these pre-election days, in fact months, and regard Mr. John W. Davis the most honest "rich man" available.

What matters if he is rich, it may be a barrier, prevent the desire of robbing the people. Better be rich on entering the White House, returning therefrom a poor man, than vice versa. At any rate I heard Mr. Davis a sufficient number of times to judge for myself that if elected he will put into practice the principles upon which this Government was founded.

In conclusion let me wish Mr. Davis success—it will be a survival of the fittest.

JANE ELDER.

CORRUPTION IS THE ISSUE.

The charge that the Republican campaign management was planning to send $100,000 to Montana to defeat Senator Walsh has not been proved. It is a rumor, sponsored as such, however, by Senator Walsh himself, and for that reason has profoundly impressed the Senate committee investigating campaign funds, and especially its chairman, Senator Borah. There can be no question, either, that the public's reaction is similar to the committee's. Public judgment would flare into righteous condemnation at such a scheme against Montana's senior Senator.

We do not believe that that statement of the case will be disputed. If that assumption is correct, there is a force at work in this election which silence, sophistry, evasion and campaign tactics have been unable to suppress. For if Senator Walsh of Montana is held in such esteem that public opinion would protest and retaliate against an attempt to encompass his defeat by corrupt practices there must be a reason. What is that reason? Simply the service the Montana Senator rendered in the exposure of the infamous dealings for the oil reserves between a Cabinet officer and the Sinclair and Doheny interests. Eliminate that service from his record and Senator Walsh of Montana would not stand out conspicuously in public appraisal. But that service is in the record and so is the public accounting of it.

The significance of this almost incidental development of the campaign fund inquiry is unmistakable. If Teapot Dome were an inconsequential thing which nobody mentions any more, as Chairman Butler smugly remarked a couple of months ago, why is it that the man who smashed his way into the secrecy of the transactions and laid bare the sordid details enjoys a public rating which no other man in public life quite commands? If Fall and Forbes and Daugherty and all the malign ramifications of Ohio rancorism at Washington have been forgotten, why is it that the people of the United States would consider the retirement of Senator Walsh as a national loss and national disgrace?

The Post-Dispatch has insisted from the first that corruption is the one overshadowing issue in this campaign. It may have been good political strategy for an administration seeking an extension of power to divert the public mind from its hideous sins. But the brand of degradation is there and it cannot be removed or concealed by the tantrums of Purse Domes, by the icy dialectics of Mr. Hughes, by the immoral effrontery of the scholarly Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, who rejoiced that only 30 per cent of the Cabinet was delinquent, nor by the dull, limping tales of White House mythology.

It may or may not be the fact that Montana was to be Newberryized and the political destruction of Walsh accomplished by the debauchery of a state. But the public reception of the rumor as voiced by Borah and adroitly elaborated by La Follette is an illuminating judgment which reveals unerringly the truth that corruption is the issue.

SMOKE, SMOKE EVERYWHERE!

The present siege of the smoke pot definitely settles the point that the smoke nuisance is not half conquered by the regulation of railroad, industrial and commercial heating-plant furnaces. The smoke becomes intolerable in calm weather only when the temperature falls low enough to necessitate residence furnace fires. The resultant effect needs no description. It is here and makes life worth living only for the clear days of the future.

The solution seems to lie in smokeless fuel residences. To universalize the use of such fuel would be worth millions of dollars a year to St. Louis, to say nothing of the health and life to be saved by the elimination of smoke. If no other course seems promising a handsome reward might be offered for the invention of an adequate device or for the most practical program for eliminating soft-coal smoke in St. Louis. Let the present attack build a relentless purpose in the people, organizations and government of St. Louis to grapple with this problem until it is conquered. It is a menace to the city. Our homes, our health and our livelihood are in the balance.

A TASK FOR THE CRIME PROBERS.

Among the purposes for which the new Missouri Association for Criminal Justice has been created is "to conduct a state-wide survey of the administration of criminal justice and of the CAUSES AND CONDITIONS of crime within the State of Missouri." At the meeting preliminary to the organization of the association, Guy A. Thompson, retiring president of the Missouri Bar Association, cited statistics showing that, for the year 1923, 112 murders were committed in St. Louis, 58 in Kansas City, 235 in Chicago and 143 in Philadelphia. But the city of London, with a population exceeding the aggregate of the four American cities, had only 27 murders during the same period of time.

One of the principal tasks of the new association, of course, is to solve the problem of a more efficient administration of the criminal laws, so that murderers shall not go unpunished. But the prevention of murders, or the reduction of their number to the minimum, is of even more importance. And that brings up the question, why are murderers so numerous in our big cities and so comparatively few in London, with its millions?

Admitting the fact that the British police system and criminal law enforcement make it more difficult for murderers to escape the penalty, we are confronted with two factors that bear upon the case. London, without prohibition, is steadily reducing its prison population; crime there is decreasing. St. Louis and the other American cities, with prohibition, are annually witnessing an increase in crime, especially crimes of violence. Citing figures given by the American Bar Association in August, 1923, the increase in our prison and reformatory population between 1910 and 1920 was 18.6 per cent, while the increase in the country's total population was 14.9 per cent. France, too, is without prohibition. Yet the comparison between the French cities and ours shows a similar discouraging result.

In 1917, before prohibition went into effect, there were in the Federal prisons at Atlanta, Leavenworth and McNeil Island a total of 3018 prisoners. The report of the Federal Superintendent of Prisons showed that in 1923 there were, in the same institutions, 5223, a trifle less than double the number before prohibition.

Says R. Ogden Chisolm, New York philanthropist and capitalist, who has for 20 years been a member of the Executive Committee of the New York Prison

Association and is known throughout the country as the friend of men "doing time": "As a worker in prisons I ought to be bone dry, according to those who think they know. I can honestly say prohibition is the greatest crime booster and unrest producer the country has ever seen."

There is much more testimony to the same effect, and no denial can be made that crime and prohibition have gone hand in hand. The claim that prohibition would decrease crime has been utterly disproved by the facts.

If the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice will, without bias, investigate this aspect of the crime problem, the results ought to be of great value. If prohibition is truly a crime breeder, especially in Missouri, whose voters voted against prohibition in the general election of 1918, the association should add its influence to the movement to annul this vicious summary legislation.

LINCOLN REPUBLICANS FOR DAVIS.

Maj. George Haven Putnam, veteran New York publisher, is fully entitled to call himself an Abraham Lincoln Republican. He followed Lincoln by voting for the great Civil War President in 1864, after having fought for three years in the Union army and suffered in Libby Prison. Putnam has passed the 60 years since his first vote in an environment of culture conducive to correct thinking.

In the New York Times appears a letter captioned "Appeal to Independents," signed by Maj. Putnam, who offers a number of reasons why, in his belief, the independents should vote for John W. Davis. He holds that Mr. Davis possesses "larger qualifications for the presidency than can be claimed for either of his competitors, or than have been possessed by any candidate for the presidency during the past half century."

"On a domestic question of serious and vital importance," says Maj. Putnam, "that of the Ku Klux Klan, Mr. Davis has not been afraid to speak out with decision and force." The veteran thinks Mr. Davis has made "the most effective analysis that has yet been presented of the absurd attempts of La Follette and his supporters to replace the authority of the courts with the decisions of legislative bodies, decisions which must often express only the passion and ignorance of the moment." He points out "the absurdities and the inequities of the medieval Fordney tariff." Maj. Putnam closes thus:

"John W. Davis stands for an honest, intelligent and wide-minded administration of the Government of our Republic, and he is entitled to the support of all patriotic citizens who refuse to be bound by the shackles of narrow partisanship. This, at least, is the conclusion arrived at by one independent who in 1864 had the privilege of voting for Abraham Lincoln."

There are, perhaps, millions of men and women in America who, in their theories of government, are "Abraham Lincoln Republicans." Like Maj. Putnam, they can vote for John W. Davis without changing their views.

Harry Scullin, representing protected steel, and Festus J. Wade, representing banks and railroads, naturally drift with Sam Lazarus, representing railroads, into the camp of the tariff barons and the railroad magnates.

Nobody Thought of It.

"So far as I was concerned," explains David H. Blair, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the section of the revised statutes which forbids the publication of income tax returns "was not called to my attention until a day or two ago. Nobody thought of it."

Not until the revenue act had been in force four months and 21 days, not until the fourth day after the order was issued that the lists should be made public, was the conflict between a provision of law forbidding publication and the provision directing publicity called, by his own admission, to the attention of the Treasury official charged with the enforcement of the law. Even now no opinion upon the legal points involved has been given by Attorney-General Stone.

Confusion of statement in Washington is matched by confusion of compliance in the different collection districts. Some collectors obey the order granting publicity; some refuse publicity; some wobble between the two interpretations in a desperate attempt to reconcile the irreconcilable.

No department of government should be willing to act in a matter of first importance without a guiding statement of the law governing that action. Why did the Treasury rush with such terrible haste into this swamp of blunders? Why were no precautions observed? Was it because political pressure for a political use of the United States Treasury was so urgent that "nobody thought" of looking up the law?

COOLIDGE AND CORRUPTION.

Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, Republican and son of a former Republican President, in repudiating his party and declaring that he would vote for John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential candidate, not only condemns the Republican administration on account of misrule and corruption, but specifically condemns the inexcusable attitude of indifference on the part of the administration to the scandals which affected it. On this point he says:

It seems to me that there has been an inexcusable attitude of indifference on the part of the administration to the scandals which have affected it. Public office is indeed a public trust, and the party that proves itself indifferent ought no longer to be entrusted with the powers of government.

This indifference has been exhibited by every prominent party leader who is supporting the Coolidge-Dawes ticket. The most conspicuous evidence of it was not only President Coolidge's reluctance to dismiss members of his Cabinet involved in the scandals, but his miserable excuse offered in his speech to the Associated Press at New York, April 22, when he said: "BUT THE WONDER IS NOT THAT THIS (CORRUPTION) IS SO MUCH AND SO MANY (CORRUPTIONISTS); RATHER THAT IT IS SO LITTLE AND SO FEW."

What can be expected of a party whose leaders condone corruption and incompetence, and at the same time condemn those who expose it?

"NO PUBLICITY!"

JUST A MINUTE

Mr. Bryan thinks this is the best poem of the campaign. He takes it out and reads it every time he thinks of Mr. Coolidge sticking to the White House and saying nothing.

A fly old for stays in his hole:
He knows how much his family stole.
He must stay hid—he can't deny
They robbed the roost while he was by.

Sir: Speaking of the Literary Digest's list of the vote for President, we are told, "that figures won't lie," but we are also reminded that when the occasion requires it, some liars can figure like hell.

Sir: I have a clubhouse on Eleven Point River, and we have a lot of funny things happen at the clubhouse. Three fellows was there a few days ago. One was a Democrat, one a Republican and one a Socialist. They found a polecat den in a cave on a bluff and they agreed that the one that could stay the longest in the polecat den was the strongest politically. The Democrat walked in and stayed 30 minutes. The Socialist went in and stayed five minutes and came out, and the Republican walked in and the polecat walked out. So you see what our wild animals think of a Republican down here in the Ozark country.

Alton, Mo.
Sir: It was a most grievous thrust for Republican spellbinders when the Borah investigating Committee brought out the fact that J. P. Morgan was contributing to the Coolidge campaign fund. "Oh, sin, oh shame, oh sorrow," why did they do it? K.

Mr. Hughes says all the talk about dollar diplomacy is moonshine and that we seek only to promote American interest in Latin America. So far as we know that is all that anyone ever charged that we are doing.

Halloween ought to be the banner night for Gen. Dawes, who has by this time conjured up hundreds of ghosts.

PARAGRAPHS.

Al Jolson and party were given a breakfast at the White House, after which Al made the President laugh out loud. Despite the earliness of the hour Al ought to call it a day.

The mechanical knowledge of the Prince of Wales was a surprise to Mr. Ford, which should not be allowed to eclipse the pride he must take in such knowledge of the general public that he is responsible for.

Mark Twain's cabin in Nevada where he wrote Roughing It is to be preserved; which, of course, has had no relations with the Little White House in K Street, where they did so much in the way of smoothing it. Judges in a contest in Dublin to obtain a new national song for Ireland, declared that of all the songs submitted there wasn't one that was worth a guinea. Song writers over there should give more attention to such work as has won success before, particularly, "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

One of the generals in the Chinese war wants to call hostilities off long enough to find out what the war is about. However, that is too obviously unpatriotic to command respect.

Everybody but the Republicans is trying to destroy the Government.

NEWS FROM THE TRAINING QUARTERS.

The public is expectantly looking forward to the forthcoming battle early in November, and there is much speculation as to the condition and prospects of the contenders.

The present titleholder is said to be working out very quietly in Washington. His backers are believed to be greatly worried as to the outcome of the fight, yet there is an air of secrecy and quiet confidence around his training quarters which his opponents are unable to understand.

Just why he should be an odds on favorite to win is a mystery, for it seems as though he is really going out of his class in meeting the challenging heavyweight Davis, who is said to be going through a rigorous course of training. The latter has recently taken up cross-country running and is fast getting into the pink of condition. His followers claim he will match his opponent's coolness with an equal amount of caution and with such overpowering strength as to sweep the title-holder off his feet.

Battling Bob, who is scheduled to meet the winner on the same day, is also training vigorously and is said to be as hard as nails. Although he is getting along in years yet his eyes still flash fire and he is able to deal the same powerful sledge-hammer blows. It is violating no secret to say that the present title-holder would be glad to avoid meeting him if he could, for he claims that he is really dangerous; and looking at the matter from his standpoint perhaps he is right. Battling Bob scoffs at the idea that the best he can hope for is a draw. He says he is aiming for a real knockout and will be satisfied with nothing less.

As the day approaches for the great battle, the public interest and anxiety increases and there will be great joy when the going is finally heard. Go to it, boys, and may the best man win.

No doubt the sign painter could not see what purpose would be served by adding another c to the first word, and we quite agree with him that none would.

Mr. Doheny's lawyer says his client has been totally misunderstood, and if the Republicans win the election next month he will have been wholly exonerated.

THE TREASURE HUNT.

My life's a song
With here and there, a sigh:
(A cloud that hides the sun
But soon drifts by.)
My heart's an organ
Through whose pipes I sing—
The praises of the kingdom
And the King!

Let others live in mansions
Uncontent:
A-gloating o'er the gold
That they possess;
I seek the treasures of a life
Well spent—
A simple home
Filled with real happiness.

CRIME AND THE COURTS.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE Missouri Bar Association has taken a forward step toward the reduction of crime and the administration of justice. A charter has been just granted a body of Missouri lawyers to make a survey of the causes and conditions of crime in different cities and to investigate just what faults there are in the courts that may impede full justice. Further than this, it proposes to improve crime-haunted places in the cities and urging legislation that will make the law a more potent influence as a restraining force. This is the first survey of the kind. Chicago and Cleveland have gone into this work with painstaking care, and at least have done much to prevent those endless continuances that offer the easiest loopholes for the malefactor. No doubt Missouri feels the need of stepping this means of approach to the criminal. Kansas City particularly has been this plan worked to the detriment of justice and the Kansas City Star has more than one occasion has urged speedier justice as the great need of the courts.

And dilatory tactics have proved a menace to the criminal in Louisville as well as Kansas City. Continuances following continuances till months have passed, have resulted in acquittals because prosecuting witnesses have either left the State or moved to the State, and the case is dropped for lack of evidence. The criminal is thus enabled to repeat his crime, as too often is the case, and the law is made a mockery. If the Missouri Bar Association can do more than merely rectify this flaw it will do much for the State. In this day of crime and growing lack of respect for the law, such a survey, prosecuted on lines which are extremely timely.

HOUSING THE BACHELORS.

From the New York Sun.

THE hotels recently opened to accommodate men have so broadened their usefulness as to receive women as well. A hotel soon to open its doors will depart from the original dedication to the entertainment of men guests. The supply of so-called bachelor apartments exceeds the demand. Women are welcome to the hotels which were originally reserved for the enjoyment of men. A quarter of a century ago a few apartment houses for men were built. They were immediately popular. For several years seemed as if there was never a vacancy in one of these buildings. With the increase of such a return on the investment, bachelor apartments grew in number and they now abound in every part of the city. Whereas there were but few of them a few years ago there are now all kinds in arrangement, cost and location. Evidently the saturation point has been reached. There are more single men than there are single men to occupy them. There are plenty of them to be had. Indeed, there is an evident surplus. So many hotels and apartments which had what arrogantly reserved their quarters for the bachelor, have capitulated and are willing to take the other sex to occupy the rooms and help meet the overhead.

DRAMA

"Vogues and Frolics" a Jolly Show, With Odette Myrtil, Jimmy Savo and Fred Allen.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

Early as the second scene of "Vogues and Frolics," last night at the Shubert-Jefferson, the large audience was convulsed by the mere silent apparition of a comedian who has no doubt been here in vaudeville, but who was making his local debut in a musical production. Wrapped from neck to heels in a fur coat, he revealed only a sallow face, heavy-lidded eyes and the gaping mouth of imbecility.

His vis-a-vis, Fred Allen, well known for his drawing, droll monologues, proceeded to heap genial insults upon his diminutive companion. Thereupon the corpse-like man awoke to the most expressive grimaces of dancing eyebrows, rolling eyes and twisted features. It was a masterly commentary in pantomime. Thus Jimmy Savo introduced himself to a favor which steadily enhanced throughout the evening.

He is a sort of combination Charlie Chaplin and Eddie Cantor, but with a flavor all his own. His comers and footgear are a farce in themselves, and his dancing is a thing of comic beauty. Before the entertainment had proceeded far, the audience would have been content for Savo to keep the stage the remainder of the evening.

Odette Myrtil Delightful. However, the comedienne shared honors with a delectable young woman who was making her first appearance in St. Louis. This was Miss Odette Myrtil, advertised as a French actress, but resembling more a sprightly type of American girl. She sang one ditty in French and used an accent which steadily approached good English as the show coursed onward. Whatever her nationality, she sings more or less well, plays the violin acceptably, dances most gracefully, and is a real beauty. In the daily artistry of feminine magnetism and allurements, she is tall, slender and dark, with an intelligent face.

A revue, from its name, was originally supposed to be a caricature of current happenings, particularly plays. "Vogues and Frolics" returns to this function by presenting burlesques of such dramas as "The Miracle," "Rain" and "Spring Cleaning." These interjections are permitted to interfere greatly with the real business of the show, which is plenty of dancing and comedy, charming girls in quantities, beautiful costumes, particularly Miss Myrtil's, and handsome men. The entertainment rushes along at its velocity.

Miss Arco is Welcomed, which has evidences of a plot, also, which need not detain us beyond stating that an exiled Princess in America is rescued by Dr. Spaulman, master piper of "The Miracle," and through various episodes to a position as a star actress. In these adventures the part of duenna falls to Miss Flavia Arco, for two seasons contralto of the Municipal Theater Association. Her address here has a revolving sign.

Others in the cast may be noted Joseph "Tone," a tear of resonant and tuneful voice; the pretty Swenson sisters, Beatrice and M. Collins; George Anderson, comedian, who has been a revolving sign; a bandy-legged Marwyn, Hawaiian dancer; Helen Higgins and Edith Blossom, dancers; Ted Wheeler, juvenile, and the Paquella, three of the most agile acrobats on the stage. Miss California, a girl orchestra leader, is a specialty.

Some of the larger scenes are entitled "The Bedroom of the Princess," "The School of Dramatic Art," "The Millionaire's Cafe," "The Conservatory," "Rock and Roll," and "The Dancing Master." The last, arranged by Miss Myrtil, is designed to display her gifts as a violinist. The music is lively and often lacerating, and the humor, according to the sophistication of the hearer, is quite innocent or sometimes very horrid.

Leiber's "Hamlet" is Romantic, Convincing and Inspiring. RITZ LEIBER, champion star, began a week's engagement at the American Theater last night with "Hamlet." The audience was large, the program being a Shakespearean drama from two years ago. Last night's performance was the opening of the American for its season of spoken drama, following two film engagements.

"Romantic Plays" is the designation given to Leiber's repertoire, which includes, besides Shakespeare, "The Three Musketeers." The word "Romance" is not commonly applied to "Hamlet," but Leiber's playing of the role makes it suitable.

Here is a romantic Hamlet, a young prince of humane appeal, who plays strong and not the usual weak and mental affliction of the hero, but the genial spirit and the intellect, which as out-of-control time perverted into bitterness and self-murder.

The author's scenes are rendered with the reactions of a mind whose response is not matched by quality of stern resolve. With his Hamlet is a complex of emotions, which is a revelation, but one who is not a mere sentimentalist, rather than a sentimentalist. With the players, he is the most successful director of a theatrical enterprise. In all, he

THE FIRST OF WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S four most important football games this season will take place at Francis Field Saturday afternoon when the powerful University of Kansas Jayhawkers call.

The Jayhawkers call. Saturday will be the Piker home-coming day and a large attendance is expected. It is expected to square old accounts means anything, there is reason to believe that the Pikers will play their best in an effort to take Kansas into camp. The Kansas machine last year handed them an 18-0 trouncing at Lawrence, setting a record for high scores in the conference.

When the Jayhawkers perform, the Kansas football fans will have an opportunity to see in action the team that has performed here this season. Despite the fact that the Jayhawkers have lost four straight games, Coach "Posy" Clark's eleven looks with the best in the conference. The Jayhawkers barely lost to Nebraska last week by a 14-7 score, and Nebraska is now regarded as being the equal, at least, of the team in the Valley.

Davis Praises Kansas. Kansas has weight, speed, versatility, and is an enviable unit. His position is an enviable one. In many universities, in Princeton, for instance, the coaches confront more than a few faculty obstacles. It is held at those places that the students are in college essentially to study and there seems to be a growing faculty sentiment that football is a nuisance.

In Notre Dame it is also the idea that students are there to study. And study they do. But it is also recognized that football is a valuable adjunct to university life, that the spirit of the gridiron sport is a wholesome influence in the university atmosphere. So when the players go abroad priests go with them and hear their lessons. Thus class standing is maintained.

Princeton, nor any other eleven that limits preliminary season practice to a week before the opening of college, can hope to cope with Notre Dame at this season of the year, whatever it might be in late November. It was perhaps in realization of this that Princeton, it is announced, has declined to make a new two-year contract with Notre Dame.

What the Pikers will be able to do against Kansas is still an open question. If the Pikers perform to their full strength and play an entire game as they did against Iowa last week in the third quarter, then Saturday's game will be a battle worth seeing. The Pikers are great possibilities. The line averages more than 180 pounds and the weight is evenly distributed. The backfield contains players of great possibilities. In his play against Rolla, Levy looked like a splendid fullback. He can pass and plunge and with his interference might slip around the ends occasionally. Marshall and Saturday looked like a great and clever running back. Captain, although guilty of occasional lapses in judgment, is a dependable safety man and quarterback, while Jim Ingram, Sam Ryan, Al Hayes and Sid Weber all are good football players in themselves.

Lack Good Interference. The most conspicuous weakness of the Pikers, and one which the coaches will no doubt try to eliminate this week, is the lack of good interference. Except for that third quarter, the Piker interference against Rolla was ludicrous. Instead of leaving the ground to kick a man with the entire body, the Pikers would nudge an opponent with the shoulder and then try to make the tackle. Unless a team like Kansas, such playing will be fatal.

In short, the showing Coach Embury's men make against Kansas depends entirely on whether they play their best football or an indifferent and undeveloped team they have displayed most of the time this season.

Last week's victory over the Iowa may prove a costly affair. Ingram, regular halfback, suffered an injury which may keep him out of Saturday's game. Floun and Hayes, who were on the hospital list last week, are expected to be in condition. Clarence Avis, a lineman, has been sick in bed for several days.

So when the players go abroad priests go with them and hear their lessons. Thus class standing is maintained.

Princeton, nor any other eleven that limits preliminary season practice to a week before the opening of college, can hope to cope with Notre Dame at this season of the year, whatever it might be in late November. It was perhaps in realization of this that Princeton, it is announced, has declined to make a new two-year contract with Notre Dame.

What the Pikers will be able to do against Kansas is still an open question. If the Pikers perform to their full strength and play an entire game as they did against Iowa last week in the third quarter, then Saturday's game will be a battle worth seeing. The Pikers are great possibilities. The line averages more than 180 pounds and the weight is evenly distributed. The backfield contains players of great possibilities. In his play against Rolla, Levy looked like a splendid fullback. He can pass and plunge and with his interference might slip around the ends occasionally. Marshall and Saturday looked like a great and clever running back. Captain, although guilty of occasional lapses in judgment, is a dependable safety man and quarterback, while Jim Ingram, Sam Ryan, Al Hayes and Sid Weber all are good football players in themselves.

Lack Good Interference. The most conspicuous weakness of the Pikers, and one which the coaches will no doubt try to eliminate this week, is the lack of good interference. Except for that third quarter, the Piker interference against Rolla was ludicrous. Instead of leaving the ground to kick a man with the entire body, the Pikers would nudge an opponent with the shoulder and then try to make the tackle. Unless a team like Kansas, such playing will be fatal.

In short, the showing Coach Embury's men make against Kansas depends entirely on whether they play their best football or an indifferent and undeveloped team they have displayed most of the time this season.

Last week's victory over the Iowa may prove a costly affair. Ingram, regular halfback, suffered an injury which may keep him out of Saturday's game. Floun and Hayes, who were on the hospital list last week, are expected to be in condition. Clarence Avis, a lineman, has been sick in bed for several days.

Sign New With Notre Dame

At this time of the year Notre defensive football eleven that is probably to the cumulative effect of a slump and usually experiences the latter part of October the South application of power, the inter-physical dexterity, is quite in arm a better man than he otherwise would have been.

His position is an enviable one. In many universities, in Princeton, for instance, the coaches confront more than a few faculty obstacles. It is held at those places that the students are in college essentially to study and there seems to be a growing faculty sentiment that football is a nuisance.

In Notre Dame it is also the idea that students are there to study. And study they do. But it is also recognized that football is a valuable adjunct to university life, that the spirit of the gridiron sport is a wholesome influence in the university atmosphere. So when the players go abroad priests go with them and hear their lessons. Thus class standing is maintained.

Young's Pennsylvania University Pass

THE University of Pennsylvania forward pass as developed by Coach Lou Young is notable for its deception. The accompanying play should have a big percentage of gains.

In the lineup the ends are wide. One back is on the left close to center. Two are on the right, while the fourth is about five yards behind center. Center passes ball direct to

No. 1, who runs back not too fast.

No. 4 starts quickly and goes far out to the right.

No. 3 heads to the right and cuts in down field.

No. 2 goes for defensive end, checks him and continues down field.

Left end, No. 5 comes over quickly and takes position just over the line for a short pass.

Left guard No. 7 leaves position and comes back to protect the passer.

Right end No. 6 checks defensive tackle, then goes down field for the pass.

As shown in accompanying diagram the play puts four men in one zone for the pass.

Kapl to Be Given Chance in Game With St. Xavier

Ramacciotti's Injury Will Cause Switch in Billikens' Lineup on Saturday.

With the prospect of Frank Ramacciotti missing the game with St. Xavier to be played here Saturday, because of a strained muscle suffered in the Detroit defeat, the St. Louis University eleven will have a chance to disprove the oft-stated assertion that it is a one-man team.

It will give Al Kapl, who is serving his first year in football, an opportunity to show his prowess.

Whether Ramacciotti's injury mends by Saturday or not, it is probable that Coach Savage will keep him out of action. Ramacciotti has played the full route in almost every game this season. Even after being injured in the Detroit fray, he continued to play.

The fact that St. Xavier gives every indication of being a soft spot lends strength to the supposition that Ramacciotti will be on the side lines. The Cincinnatians this year have been trimmed by Wittenberg College and Maryville of Kentucky by top heavy scores.

Minus Herb Davis, who was the main factor in the Billikens' 20-10 downfall last season, the Saints appear to be helpless both on offense and defense.

Malone to Box Walker.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 27.—Jack Malone of St. Paul, who meets Mickey Walker, welterweight world champion, in a 12-round no-decision battle Wednesday night, has arrived here to complete his training. Malone says he will take the title.

Spalla today said that during November he would meet three Egyptian fighters at Cairo and Alexandria and in January would fight Georges Carpentier at Monte Carlo.

French Rugby Men Quit When Yankee Coach Goes to Work

PARIS, Oct. 27.—AMERICAN football training methods, as instilled into the usually placid early practice in France by Buck Hyland of California, star of the American Olympic rugby team, have proved anything but popular, and Hyland is charged by his teammates with being a "slave driver."

Hyland will play with the Stade Francaise Club of Paris, one of the strongest teams in France.

Hyland, as acting captain, put the players through their paces with such vim and energy that the Frenchmen complained. He would call for the same play for a half hour until it was completely mastered.

The French have been used to practicing a little formation work with generally some passing and kicking to vary the monotony, but never have they had to go into hard scrimmages. The climax was reached when, after two hours of strenuous practice, the American called for three turns around the stadium. Then the French players went on strike.

Lafayette Meets Pennsylvania

Leading Teams of East, Undefeated, to Clash Saturday.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Lafayette and Pennsylvania, which have the most impressive records of the Eastern football season so far, meet at Philadelphia next Saturday.

The Quakers have won six games and the Leopards five. Neither has been extended. The Army-Yale contest at New Haven will be another of next Saturday's features.

Syracuse, the remaining Eastern team neither beaten nor tied, was outplayed by Penn State Saturday, although it won, 10 to 6, and does not now seem to have the power of either Pennsylvania, which defeated Virginia, 27 to 0, or Lafayette, which swamped the previously undefeated W. and J. 20 to 6.

Princeton's dream of another year of flying feet, with those of Jimmy Crowley leading all the rest to a 12-0-0 Notre Dame victory.

The Tigers and Harvard rest, comparatively, this week, playing Swarthmore and Boston University. The Big Three series begins on the following week-end with Princeton showing at Cambridge.

LAWYER FOR HAWES
REPLIES TO HARTWayne Ely Reviews Finding of Supreme Court in Eleventh District Case.

A reply to the statement of Michael J. Hart, Republican candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, as to the Supreme Court ruling which prevented the placing of his name on the Liberal (La Follette) ticket, has been issued by Wayne Ely, attorney. Ely represented Congressman Harry B. Hawes, candidate for re-election in the Eleventh, in filing the application which the Supreme Court granted. Ely says:

"Mr. Hart's amazing assault upon the Supreme Court of Missouri is based on a correct statement of either the facts or the law. It, however, is in keeping with the general policy of the La Follette party (which he has joined) in its attack upon the United States Supreme Court."

The decision of the court was rendered after very careful hearing, with only one dissenting vote, and Mr. Hart was represented in the hearing by Assistant Attorney-General Crowder, and his case was won. It was, was very ably and comprehensively argued by him."

Statement of Case.
The facts are these: Last June Mr. Hart filed in the Eleventh Congressional District as the Republican candidate before the primaries for the nomination for Congress. His opponent permitting his nomination to go by default, he was nominated in this primary and thereby became the regular Republican nominee.

"After this time and when it was too late for the regular Republicans of the district to take action, what is known as the La Follette party came into existence and it filed its presidential election ticket under the title of the Liberal party. These presidential electors were not only filed by the committee, but were also nominated by petition, as provided by law, and by a convention of the La Follette party."

"Mr. Hart waited until the very last few days before attempting to have his name placed on the La Follette ticket; that is, he tried to come in under the supposed limitation of 15 days for filing a vacancy for which the statute provides."

Not Notified by Board.
"Neither Mr. Hawes nor myself was informed of his filing. We were not notified by the Board of Election Commissioners, nor by the Secretary of State. We were not given an opportunity to be heard in objection. It was not until late Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 22, that the matter was called to our attention."

"The objections had to be filed within three days. We had just time to appear before the Election Commissioners and object."

"It is interesting to note that this is the only Congressional District in the State of Missouri where an attempt was made by any Republican candidate to join with the La Follette party. The attempt is interesting because of the wide divergence in views between the La Follette party and the Republican party on all political questions and because of the assaults made by members of the La Follette party upon the Republican party and upon Mr. Coolidge, Mr. Dawes, and his candidates for office."

"Mr. Hart actively participated, personally and by counsel, to have his name placed upon the La Follette ticket. It could not have been done without his consent and approval, and it was only done after persistent efforts and conferences."

View of Court's Decision.
"The court's decision is not only the right law, but it, in addition, prevents an imposition upon the Republican party which originally nominated Mr. Hart in the primary without knowledge at that time of his La Follette affiliations and inclinations."

"The Supreme Court in its opinion, did not overrule the Kortjohn case (246 Mo., 34.), as stated by Mr. Hart, because the facts are entirely different. In the Kortjohn case, the candidate was nominated in three different ways and three certificates of nomination were filed. He was nominated by a regularly constituted committee, by a convention, and by a petition signed by 1 per cent of the resident voters within Kortjohn's district."

"Mr. Hart's name was not filed by petition nor by convention, and the committee which filed his name had no legal status and was without authority to file the name of anyone; but, in addition, his claim rested on the assumption that a vacancy had been created by death or resignation of some regularly nominated candidate."

False Statement Charged.
"The certificate which Mr. Hart filed contained the false statement that he was nominated to fill a vacancy. There had been no nomination, and there was no Eleventh Congressional Committee because none had ever been elected. The law provides that any party committee cannot be selected, but must be elected at the August election."

"I never try my cases in the newspapers, and it is with reluctance that I feel compelled, as a lawyer upholding the ethics of my profession, to say anything about the proceeding before the Supreme Court. The high standing and integrity of the men who compose this court are such that they need no defense, but they cannot rely on the bench, so I consider it to be my duty, as a lawyer, to state that Mr. Hart's comments in the newspapers are wrong as to the facts and wrong as to the law; and

42 Women Candidates Seeking
Election to British ParliamentOf 22 in Labor Party's List Is Wife of Bertrand
Russell, Running on Motherhood Endowment Platform.BY ARTHUR E. MANN.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1932, by the Post-Dispatch Publishing Co., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—More women candidates are standing for Parliament in the general election Wednesday than ever entered the field before. The list includes 42 Liberal, 22 Labor and 12 Tory.

The Labor party is confident of electing more than the three they had in the last Parliament—Miss Margaret Bondfield, parliamentary secretary to the Minister of Labor and the first woman member of any British Government. Miss Dorothy Jewson and Miss Susan Lawrence.

In the last election Labor supported nine women candidates, but only three were successful. Miss Jessie Stephen, a one-time domestic servant, is contesting Portsmouth. She already has had considerable experience in local politics, having been for the last several years a Labor member of the Borough Council in one of the poor river-side districts of London.

Mrs. Mary Mercer, Mayor-elect of Birkenhead, had decided to give up the certainty of municipal office and is contesting the Fairfield division of Liverpool on the Labor ticket.

Other Labor Candidates.

Other Labor women candidates are Miss Minnie Pallister, for Bournemouth; Miss Kate Spurrell, Totnes; Miss L. Simpson, West Dorset; Councillor Helen Wilkinson, Middlesbrough; East: Miss Edith Gibson, Stroud Division of Gloucester; Miss Edna Penny, North-East Leeds; Mrs. Forster, Hastings; Mrs. Coates Hansen, Cleveland Yorkshire; Mrs. Dolland, Dumfries; and Mrs. M. A. Hamilton for Chatham.

One Conservative woman attacking Labor is Mrs. Hugh Middleton, O. B. E. of Belsay Castle, Wamsbeck, widow of a naval officer, who is fighting for a seat which has been held by Labor for 30 years.

Two of the Liberal candidates are Miss E. B. Mitchell of Lanark and Lady O'Callaghan, wife of Admiral O'Callaghan, for Chatham.

Although she has but just recovered from an attack of pneumonia poisoning, which she and a number of her guests suffered during a recent house party she gave, Lady Terrington, one of the present Liberal members of the House, is putting in some hard campaign work. As the division is a scattered one no political emergency can justify a lawyer in assailing the Supreme Court of this State as has been done by him; and I know it will be resented by the bench and bar of Missouri as well as by all right-thinking men and women.

"The Election Board and the Secretary of State were evidently deceived as to the facts, or the Secretary of State would not have certified the alleged nomination to the Board of Election Commissioners, and the Election Board would not have accepted it in the second place.

Mr. Hart's application stated two things which were untrue: First, that the petitioners represented a legally constituted committee of the La Follette party, which they did not do; and, in the second place, he made a statement which deceived the Secretary of State and the Election Board that his name was filed to fill a vacancy, which is again untrue, there having been no vacancy and the La Follette party not having filed in any district of the State any candidate for State or congressional office.

No Parallel Case.
"The Hart case presented an entirely new state of facts which was not a parallel to the Kortjohn case or any other case, so that the Court could not have reversed itself and overruled a prior decision."

"The Republican record of whom had supported Mr. Hart in the primary—joined with one Democrat in the objections filed before the Board of Election Commissioners and in the petition filed before the Supreme Court, showing that regular Republicanism is not joining the La Follette party."

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN CASE OF WOMAN KILLED BY AUTOMiss Mary Cwerdinski Was Crushed When Car Driven by Woman Backed Over Sidewalk.

A "Coroner's verdict" of accident was returned today in the death of Miss Mary Cwerdinski, 74-year-old seamstress of 911 Walton avenue, who was fatally injured Friday, when an automobile, driven by a woman, backed over a sidewalk and struck her.

Mrs. Margaret Stone, a widow, of 4876 Fountain avenue, the driver, testified that she attempted to start the car, which had been parked at the curb on the east side of Euclid avenue, just north of Delmar boulevard, the engine stalled twice before starting. When she let out the clutch, she was surprised that the car started backward, indicating it had been left in reverse. She reached for the emergency brake, she testified, but the car mounted the curb, crossed the curb, striking the woman, and crashed into a building, in the excitement, she said, she was unaware she had injured anyone until two men, who took her home in a car, informed her. She said she had driven an automobile two years.

Two men, who, like Miss Cwerdinski, were pedestrians at the point, corroborated the driver's account of starting the machine. As has been told, Miss Cwerdinski and her sister, Miss Amelia, 78 years old, made their living by embroidering articles, which the younger sister sold from door to door.

She has fixed up the ground floor of her house in Chelsea for her political headquarters. Mrs. Russell does not look like an "intellectual." Petite and vivacious, with bright hazel eyes and soft, reddish-brown hair, she has more the appearance of an art student than a Labor politician.

Fighting on Husband's Behalf.
"The stage was my early ambition," she said in an interview here, "but I had to give up all idea of it. I am really contented the Chelsea seat on behalf of my husband, who was fit after the last election campaign and is not strong enough to stand the strain."

"Besides, I want to get into Parliament if I can. I want to espouse the cause of the working women, more especially the working mother. Most of the women who enter politics are interested in the problems of the middle-class woman. I want to do something for the mother who has to go out and work for her babies."

Chief among Mrs. Russell's platform planks are motherhood endowment, proper care for women before and after childbirth and pensions for widows.

Women also are taking a prominent part in this election campaign. The two who will attract most public attention are Lady Diana Duff-Cooper and Miss Isabel MacDonald. Lady Diana recently returned from New York, where she has been playing in "The Miracle," to assist her husband, who is the Conservative candidate for Oldham.

YOUNG MOTHER CONFESSES
SHE CHOKED BABY TO DEATHTells Police She Believed 2-Weeks-Old Child Would Not Have
Fair Chance.

By the Associated Press.
WOOSTER, O., Oct. 27.—Because she believed it would not have a "fair chance," Mrs. Blanche Tobias, 21, has confessed, County Prosecutor J. O. Fritz said today, that she choked her 2-weeks-old baby to death.

The baby was found dead at the county infirmary yesterday where the mother had been staying, and investigation was begun after a physician found signs of strangulation. The woman asserted, according to Fritz, that she thought the infant was "better off."

George Tobias, her husband, was held to the grand jury on charges ago on a charge of assault and battery after neighbors told the police they found Mrs. Tobias lying in the yard of their home, apparently having been beaten. The two, however, had become reconciled and had planned to live in Holmesville.

Fritz said charges probably would be filed against Mrs. Tobias today.

YOUNG MOTHER CONFESSES
SHE CHOKED BABY TO DEATHTells Police She Believed 2-Weeks-
Old Child Would Not Have
Fair Chance.

By the Associated Press.
WOOSTER, O., Oct. 27.—Because she believed it would not have a "fair chance," Mrs. Blanche Tobias, 21, has confessed, County Prosecutor J. O. Fritz said today, that she choked her 2-weeks-old baby to death.

The baby was found dead at the county infirmary yesterday where the mother had been staying, and investigation was begun after a physician found signs of strangulation. The woman asserted, according to Fritz, that she thought the infant was "better off."

George Tobias, her husband, was held to the grand jury on charges ago on a charge of assault and battery after neighbors told the police they found Mrs. Tobias lying in the yard of their home, apparently having been beaten. The two, however, had become reconciled and had planned to live in Holmesville.

Fritz said charges probably would be filed against Mrs. Tobias today.

SEVENTH AND LOCUST 1893-.1919

In 1893, the Mercantile Club building was erected on the site of the Shaw house at Seventh and Locust. Organized in 1881, the purpose of the Club was to bring together St. Louisans engaged in commercial, manufacturing and professional pursuits. The building was picturesquely beautiful with an entrance that evoked general admiration. Unfortunately, this splendid Club decided to end its existence.

The strategic site which the building occupied made it an ideal location for a financial institution. The style and plan of the club structure were unsuitable for banking purposes. Remodeled in 1919, the building became the home of the American Trust Company which occupies it today.

Few locations offer the advantages of immediate convenience as well as Seventh and Locust. The American Trust Company is proud to know that its easy accessibility for its customers and the general public is without a peer in St. Louis.

5 IN GASOLINE PLANT BECOME DELIRIOUS

They Are Said to Have Been Affected by Ethylene Fumes
—One Dead.

By Leased Wire From the New York
Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—From a laboratory in the Bayway plant of the Standard Oil Co. at Elizabeth, N. J., emerged yesterday a strange story.

Within the last week, it was said, five laborers employed at the laboratory have become delirious as a result of inhaling ethylene gas fumes during experiments in the production of gasoline.

Two of the laborers are dead. The other three are patients in Reconstruction Hospital of Federal Park West, where all information as to their condition is refused. Prosecutor David of Union County, N. J., has announced he will investigate.

According to information gathered at Elizabeth from persons not connected with the management of the plant, the first sign of trouble came last Tuesday.

Violently Delirious.
That day William McSweeney of Elizabeth was sent home because of illness. The following morning his sister-in-law had to summon a policeman, who was obliged to call three other men to help subdue McSweeney, violently delirious. McSweeney was taken to the Alexian Hospital, Elizabeth, and put in a straight jacket.

Thursday Ernest Oelgart Jr. started other employees by shrieking he could see three figures "coming at him." He was sent to the hospital and Saturday he died. The same day Herbert Fusco and Walter Dymock were sent to their homes. Dymock was put to bed, but a while later members of his family heard a crash and discovered he had fallen from his bedroom window. Dymock died last evening at Reconstruction Hospital, where he had been taken with Fusco, McSweeney and William Grege, another laboratory employee.

County Physician Brokaw said he found Oelgart had died "apparently from ethylene gas poisoning."

Dr. Archibald Synson, attached to the Alexian Hospital, described the condition of the four patients sent from the laboratory to his institution as "chemical psychosis." He said:

"We don't know exactly how ethylene gas affects the mind, but we know it causes the patient to have hallucinations. Continual inhalation of it will cause death, but if the patient realizes that the gas is affecting him and seeks medical aid, the poison can be driven out of his body in a month or more. One body recovers rapidly and there are no after effects."

Standard Oil Statement.
The Standard Oil Co. issued a statement which said that the men had become "seriously ill" while at work in the Elizabeth Laboratory last week. For weeks, the company's announcement said, these five men had been experimenting with chemicals and gases "in an effort to find a substance which could be successfully used with straight gasoline to overcome certain inherent difficulties of motor car operation."

Dr. Joseph Funk, who treated Oelgart, reported that his death was due to continued inhalation of a gas used in connection with ethylene which recently has come into wide use as an anesthetic.

Poisoning New to Science.
Dr. W. G. Thompson of Reconstruction Hospital and a consultant of the Standard Oil Co., said that the poisoning was entirely new to science. Insomnia, he said, was one of the first symptoms, and low blood pressure also was noted. The effect, he added, is somewhat similar to that which sometimes follows the use of certain poison gases during the war, but no special method of treatment has been evolved.

It later was explained that the substance with which men employed in the laboratory had been working was a fluid which, when mixed with gasoline, was designed to retard the combustion rate of the fuel. All the workers were under daily medical observation during their employment in the laboratory, the company statement said, adding that all laboratory workers were under instruction to wear gas masks at all times they conducted experiments.

TWENTY-FIVE

SHE had dressed the boy in his home-made suit cut down from one of his father's. He wore a wide-brimmed straw hat which he hated. Selina had made him an overcoat of stout beaver-skin and this she tucked under the wagon seat, together with an old black fascinator, for though the September afternoon was white-hot she knew that the evenings were likely to be chilly, once the sun, a great crimson Chinese balloon, had burned itself out in a blaze of flame across the prairie horizon. Selina herself, in a full-skirted, black-stuff dress, mounted the wagon agilely, took up the reins, looked down at the boy seated beside her, clucked to the horses. Jan Steen gave vent to a final outraged bellow.

"Never in my life did I hear of such a thing!" Selina turned the horses' heads toward the city.

"You'd be surprised, Jan, to know of all the things you're going to hear of some day that you've never heard of before." Still, when 20 years had passed and the Ford, the phonograph, the radio and the rural mail delivery had dumped the world at Jan's plodding feet he likes to tell of that momentous day when Selina de Jong had driven off to market like a man with a wagon load of hand-scrubbed garden truck and the boy Dirk perched beside her on the seat.

If, then, you had been traveling the Halesburg road, you would have seen a decrepit wagon, vegetable-laden, driven by a too-thin woman, sallow, bright-eyed, in a shapeless black dress, a battered black hat that looked like a man's old "federal" and probably was. Her hair was unbecomingly strained away from the face with its high cheek bones, so that unless you were really observant you failed to notice the really fine nose or unusually large nose in the anxious face. On the seat beside her you would have seen a farm boy of nine or thereabouts—a brown freckle-faced lad in a comically home-made suit of clothes and a straw hat with a broken and flopping brim—which he was forever jerking off only to have it set firmly on again by the woman who beside him to fear the effects of the hot-afternoon sun on his close-cropped head. But in the brief intervals when the hat was off you must have noted how the boy's eyes were shining.

At their feet was the dog Pom, a mongrel whose tail bore no relation to his head, whose ill-assorted legs appeared wholly at variance with his sturdy barrel of a body. He dozed now, for it had been his duty to watch the wagon load at night, while Pervus slept. A shabby enough little outfit, but magnificent, too. Here was Selina De Jong driving up the Halesburg road toward the city instead of sitting black-robed in the farm parlor while High Prairie came to console. In Selina, as they jogged along the hot dusty way, there welled up a feeling very like elation. Conscious of this, the New England strain in her took her to task. "Selina Peake, aren't you ashamed of yourself? You're a wicked woman! Feeling almost gay when you ought to be sad. . . . Poor Pervus . . . the farm . . . Dirk . . . and you can feel almost gay? You ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

But she wasn't, and knew it. For even as she thought this the little wave of elation came flooding over her again. More than ten years ago she had driven with Klaas Pool up that same road for the first time, and in spite of the recent tragedy of her father's death, her youth, her loneliness, the terrifying thought of the new home to which she was going, a stranger among strangers, she had been conscious of a warm little thrill of elation, of excitement—of adventure! That was it. "The whole thing's just a grand adventure," her father, Simeon Peake, had said. And now the sensations of that day were repeating themselves. Now, as then, she was doing what was considered a revolutionary and daring thing; a thing that High Prairie regarded with horror. And now, as then, she took stock. Youth was gone, but she had health, courage; a boy of nine; twenty-five acres of wornout farm land; dwelling and out-houses in a fair state of repair; and a gay adventure-some spirit that was never to die, though it led her into curious places and she often found, at the end, only a wash tub and a wasp, which she had to retrace her steps painfully. But always, to her, red and green cabbages were to be made and burgundy, chrysopras and porphyry. Life has no weapons against a woman like that.

And the wine-red cashmere, she laughed aloud. "What are you laughing at, Mom?" That sobored her. "Oh, nothing. Sobs. I didn't know I was laughing. I was just thinking about a red dress I had when I first came to High Prairie a girl. I've got it yet." "What's that to laugh at?" He was following a yellow-hammer with his eyes. "Nothing. Mother said it was nothing."

THE COUNTRY GIRL

By Sophie Irene Loeb

A GIRL from a country town has just left the big city and returned to her home in Pennsylvania, a much sadder though wiser young woman.

She went to New York in search of fame and fortune and found herself in the clutches of the law, having met with bad company and gotten into trouble. The Judge in the case was kind and realized that the girl was more foolish than blame-worthy and let her go back whence she came.

Her sweet-heart, who had associated with her since school days is waiting with open arms, forgiving all.

This young person was lucky in that she retrieved herself in time, and life may have much in store for her. Her few short weeks in New York will become only a memory, though a sorrowful one.

But how about the hundreds of young people who come to the big places and get swallowed up in the rush of things and never have a chance to get back, who get so far down in the swamp of distress and destitution that they lose their courage and become the flotsam and jetsam of the seething throng? I know a young woman—an only child—the idol of her father and mother, also from a little town in Pennsylvania. This girl had every advantage in the way of schooling. She was adored in her environment—the belle of the place. Her friends were legion.

She was talented and attractive, and could have gone through life in her home town, honored and respected, and a worth-while citizen. But youth longed to spread its wings before they were strong enough to fly. She desired, she wished, she longed to see the world.

She had depended on the praises of her close friends who told her that she had great talent for the stage. Because she knew how to recite "pieces" so well, she had visions of being a Bernhardt or a Duse, and nothing could stop her in her mad career to get the world at her feet.

Little did she realize that the flatteries of friends are worthless when it comes right down to professional advancement. She was too proud to acknowledge defeat and she sank lower and lower before her people called her situation. They finally wrote me to go and see her, she having written rather rosy accounts, evading the truth.

I found her in a hall bedroom, in the center of a bunch of rags, trying to fix up a costume for a vaudeville act, having found a partner—a man who would play it with her.

In the seemingly short two years that she had been away from her parents, this girl spoke a different language. It seemed incredible. She lived in the lower strata of the stage, and the most sordid things seemed important in getting into the little vaudeville act.

She would not listen to the suggestion of returning home. She still clung to the possibility that she could rise above everything. What happened?

She married the vaudeville partner, only to seek the divorce courts a year later. She gave up the stage and became a model in a dress house.

She is in touch with her parents now, who are anxious to straighten everything out for her and give her another lease on life; but the time she has lost—the misery she has endured—can better be imagined than described.

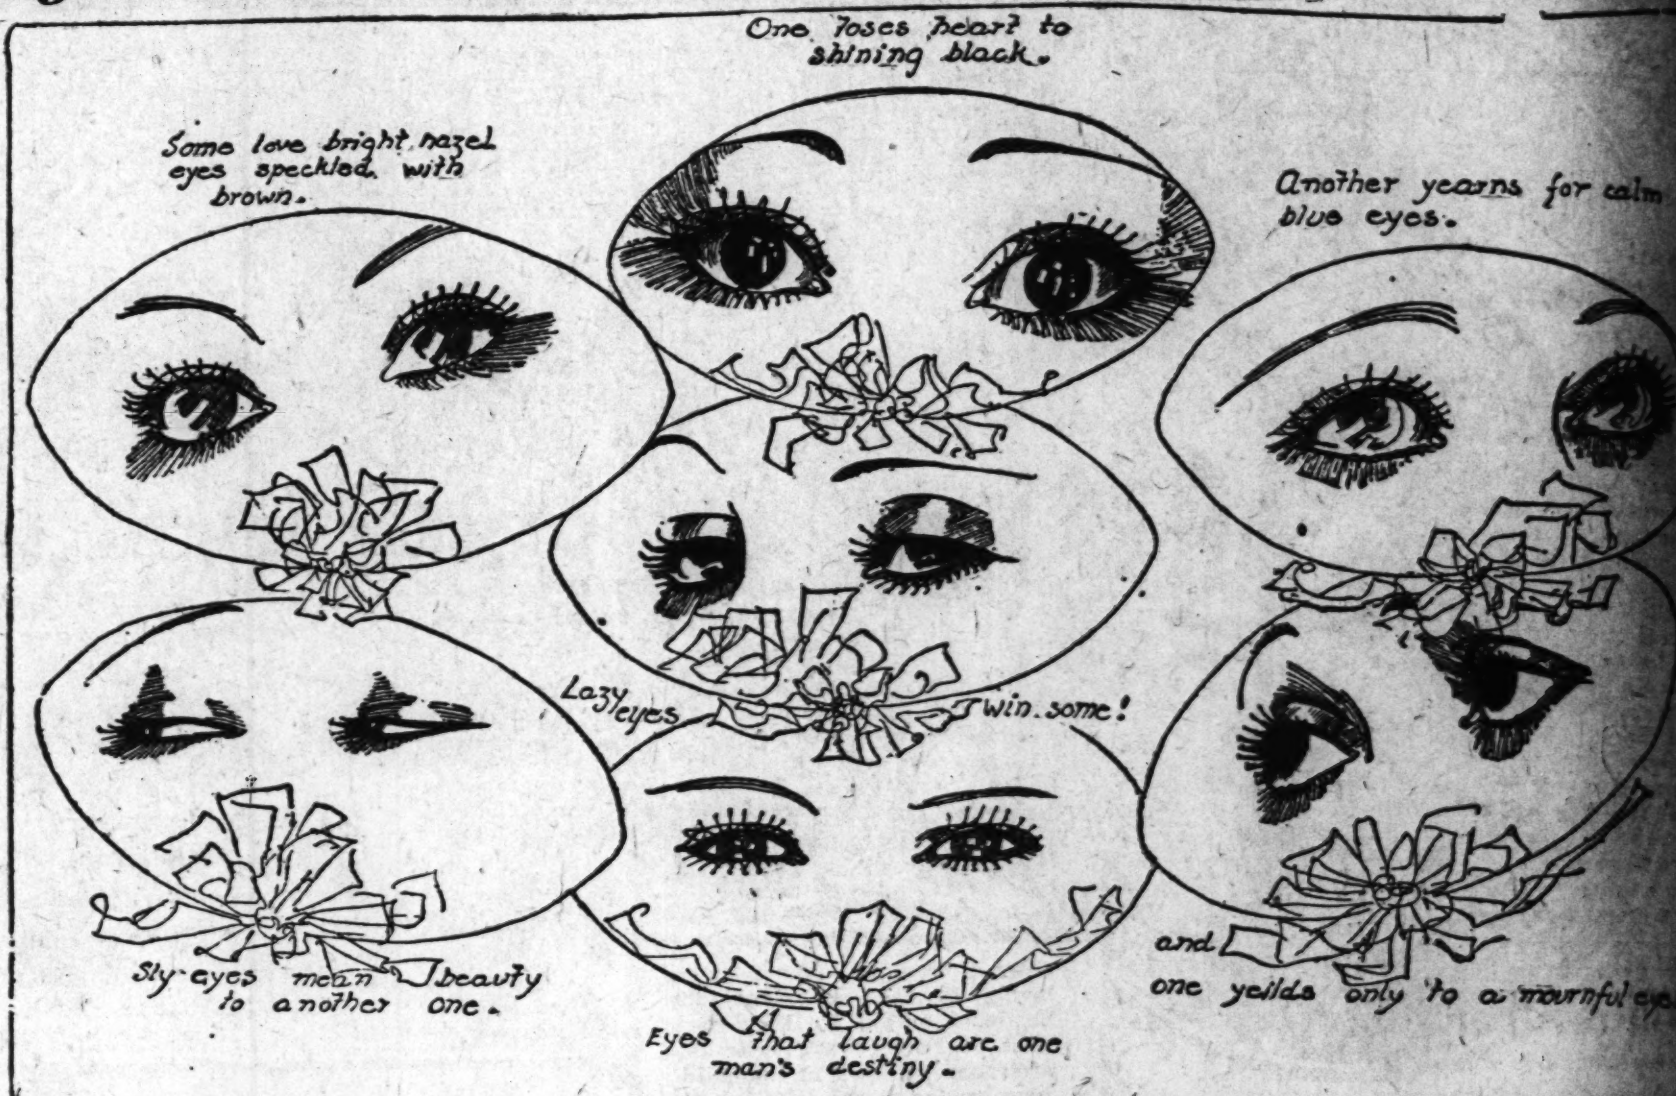

She has certainly paid for her soaring ambition. Ambition is vital and important in the young, but it must be tempered with common sense. Most home-grown products, when they are uprooted and put in another place, seldom thrive. Some do, but the percentage is so small as to make it a serious problem for the average person to consider.

At any rate, the young person who would rush to the big city had better search deeply and be pretty sure that the talent he wishes to present to the world has in it something bigger than that with which every city is already flooded—every day talent.

Eyes

Which Kind Are Your Waterloo?

DRAWN BY NELL BRINK

MEN say, "I don't like that kind of eyes," or "I'll tell you what are beautiful eyes!" And girls do the same. Even grandmothers and grandfathers, for it seems the opinions of folks, and their sense of beauty are about the last things to give out before we pass on into the Other Land where everything is beautiful, we hope.

But how good it is—and that sentence I've been broadcasting proves it—that there isn't just one KIND of eyes. What'd the rest of us do—ALL the rest of us who liked anything but that one kind. Just like the weather, you know. Everybody suited. If the man who hopes to never see any place but Florida all his life long, had all the weather in all the round world to suit himself, the man who likes a little snow in his would be flat on his back and highly displeased all HIS life long.

If I had it all mountains, what would the man who loves the sea do? But ah, we can sit back on the middle of our spines in an easy chair in this good world, and know that we can find just what we like somewhere on the face of it. And yet we look, either! Your own town can give you any kind of weather, any kind of even country-folks, and any kind of art that you are particular for.

And the world of love and friendship has eyes, kinds of eyes enough to suit and everybody serene.

There are calm blue eyes for Bill, if he likes 'em so. There are sparkling black ones for Jim. There are hazel eyes for John, to remind him of a mountain brook.

There are sly eyes for sophisticated Jack. There are laughing ones for George-Porgie. There are mournful ones, shadowed with dreams for Dick.

And there are the eyes of a little child, with a remote, an elusive, a fleeting look of the heaven he came from still in their honest depths, for a boy is a boy, and everybody serene.

UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM NEW YORK
FORMER COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, NEW YORK CITY

I N the community where I live is a club. It is not a golf club nor a country club. Called the "Community Club," it is exactly what the name indicates. Here meet the rich and the lowly. Brokers and great merchant princes mingle with farmers and day laborers.

A short time ago the whole neighborhood gathered at the club for a Fall frolic. It was a wonderful day. "King Tut" and "Queen Tut" were crowned. There were all sorts of races and contests. Everybody spent an entire day in the open.

It is a pity that it requires a lot of trouble and advertising to get folks outdoors. For the sake of health and long life, a part of every day of the year should be spent in the open.

Sunlight has more than a mere mental effect. It is productive of actual chemical and physical benefit to the human race. It has its effect on the blood, adding power and virtue to the red blood. It is germicidal, too, killing bacteria which might harm us if given the opportunity.

The sun's rays number not only heat and light rays, but also "actinic rays." These last-mentioned rays have a beneficial chemical effect upon the human tissues.

Every mother should take her baby into the sunlight every day. The older children should be required to spend hours out-of-doors.

When you tell folks to get into the air, they think this means to walk or exercise. Lots of people don't like to walk. They have sore muscles or sore feet. They have FOUR-QUARTERS.

"Four Quarters" means a delicious entremets in the French kitchen.

Weigh three eggs and take the same weight of flour and butter. By the way, much of the success in the French cuisine is due to this habit of weighing instead of measuring the ingredients. It is the only certain way, and every French housewife and cook has a little balance and weights in her kitchen.

Cream the butter and sugar in a large tureen and add the yolks of the eggs, with flavoring of the best of orange, lemon or mandarine. Incorporate the flour and then the whites of the eggs, beaten into a firm snow. Put into a buttered mold and bake in the oven for about one-half hour. In order to make the batter very light, add a small teaspoonful of baking powder to the flour.

Though she never votes, Mrs. James P. Donohue, daughter of the late F. W. Woolworth, is considered the star taxpayer, her taxes being $1,000,000, which is more than any other woman in the country pays.

ODD and INTERESTING FACTS

Many of our greatest novelists have drawn their characters from life, and for this reason, says Mr. John McCaffrey, their books have an atmosphere of reality. The best books are those which make us exclaim: "Why, the characters are just like people I know!" Many authors make themselves the heroes of their own novels. Jack London did this in "Martin Eden" with conspicuous success. Charles Dickens was the hero of "David Copperfield." Rudyard Kipling is the original of Beetle in "Stalky & Co." Every one is, of course, aware of the fact that Mrs. Asquith is the Dodo of E. F. Benson's novel of that name. This book also contained several other characters who were popularly supposed to be well-known social celebrities of the day. The original of Sherlock Holmes was Dr. Joseph Bell, a lecturer in Edinburgh University. When Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was a medical student he was impressed by this lecturer's methods of reasoning. This inspired him to create the famous detective. In "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," the heroine, Angela Marchionni, was generally supposed to be Baroness Burdett-Coutts. Rose leaves were used for centuries ago, while red roses were used in the 16th century. In London there are still in existence houses still in existence which were built before the year 1666. Cloth made from the Wendleydale sheep is so fine that it is used for the lining of the robes of the Pope. A wise and good man is no disgrace.

True pleasure and freedom are nowhere to be found in the practice of virtue.

Philosophical Phrasings

It is the custom, not that makes the marriage. A wise and good man is no disgrace.

True pleasure and freedom are nowhere to be found in the practice of virtue.

THINKST thou, oh Foolish One, that man's knickerbockers and imitated his counterpart?

Yes, Heaven be praised, thou art still and suffer, even as a woman!

For, lo, to a woman, marriage is now, but, to a man, it is only a danger. To a woman, the altar is still the altar. It is only one of the milestones along a woman's romance is a fascinating to the end of her days; but to a man, even a Santa Claus story, in which his first kiss is a surprise, an experience to a woman, home is her stronghold; but to a man it is an altar.

To a woman, the admiration and approval of a man, the admiration of her approval a foregone conclusion. To a woman, all her love-affairs are cherished; but to a man all love-affairs are discarded, even as his last year's toilet. To a woman, a proposal is a triumph; but to a man, a proposal is a failure. To a woman, a wedding ring is a symbol of love; but to a man a wedding ring is a symbol of his private property.

Yes, verily, verily, when a damsel is tripped to the altar, it MAY be a natural war change, but to a woman, LOVE alone!

For, unto a man, a wedding is a test of his devotion.

But, unto a woman, life without a wedding is still a woman's, and full of love, and full of love.

WOMAN IS ALWAYS WOMAN.

WOMAN IS ALWAYS WOMAN. WILKINSON thou, oh Foolish One, because thou hast borrowed from the knickerbockers and imitated his hair-cut, that thou art his counterpart?

Yes, Heaven be praised, thou art still a WOMAN, and shall remain so, even as a woman!

For lo, to a woman, marriage is now and always the Great Adventure, but to a man, it is only a dangerous venture.

To a woman, the altar is still the End of the Trail; but to a man it is only one of the milestones along the way.

To a woman romance is a fascinating dream which she pursues to the end of her days; but to a man it is a childish fairy-tale, a Santa Claus story, in which he soon ceases to believe.

To a woman, her first kiss is a sacrament or a sacrilege; but to a man, a first kiss is a surprise, an experiment, or an ordeal.

To a woman, home is her stronghold, wherewith she "holdeth" her husband; but to a man it is an anchor, which he is forever loosing.

To a woman, the admiration and approval of men, is food and fuel; but to a man, the admiration of women is only a little "relish," which approval a foregone conclusion.

To a woman, all her love-affairs are sacred remembrances tenderly cherished; but to a man all love-affairs are amusing or bitter sensations, even as his last year's follies.

To a woman, a proposal is a triumph and an engagement ring sacred; but to a man, a proposal is a private confession of weakness, and an engagement ring a public confession of surrender.

To a woman, a wedding ring is a symbol of her faith and security; but to a man a wedding ring is a symbol of his ownership, and she wears as his private property.

Yes, verily, when a damsel fasteneth on her wedding-trip, she is tripping to the altar, it MAY be for love. But, when a man saith unto his wedding coat and drageth himself to the altar it is for love, and LOVE alone!

For, unto a man, a wedding is a sacrificial ordeal, and the supreme test of his devotion.

But, unto a woman, life without a wedding would be as Christ without a Christmas tree!

Now then, oh thou Foolish One, dost thou think by a Boyish attainment the freedom of Man? For thou canst not "bob" thy hair, which is still a woman's, and full of yearnings!

the brush. "My, my, Bowser, if you keep on barking like this you'll lose your voice! Yes, sir, you'll lose your voice! Now supposing you get out of my way and let me look under there and see who it is you are so excited about," said Farmer Brown's Boy, as he pushed Bowser out of the way.

He got down on his hands and knees and peered under the brush. Of course, it was dark in under there, and he could see nothing but a pair of eyes. Whose eyes they were he hadn't the least idea. "There is someone in there, sure enough," said he to Bowser. "Now, I wonder who it can be? It certainly isn't Reddy Fox. It may be Yowler the Bob Cat, but I doubt it. If I thought it was Yowler we would go away and leave him alone. Ha! There is a black and white hair. I suspect it is Bobby Coon in there. We'll pull away this brush, Bowser, and find out."

So Farmer Brown's Boy began pulling away the brush. Of course, Bobby Coon heard him and knew what he was doing. Bobby was in despair. He didn't know it was Farmer Brown's Boy who was pulling away that brush. He thought it was a hunter. He knew that if this were so he hadn't a chance in the world for his life. There he was with a little tin can, which he thought was a trap, fast on one paw and no chance to run or climb, and very little chance to fight.

As Farmer Brown's Boy pulled away the brush, more and more light came into where Bobby waited for the end. Bowser kept barking more and more excitedly. He kept getting in the way of Farmer Brown's Boy. At last his master made him lie down at the foot of a tree a short distance away. Bowser obeyed. But all the time he kept whining and whimpering with excitement. Farmer Brown's Boy expected to see Bobby Coon run out and make for a tree. He didn't know what to make of it when Bobby didn't.

At last the brush was pulled away so that the light fell fully on Bobby. He crouched there, glaring at Farmer Brown's Boy and ready to fight as best he could. Bobby Coon is no coward. Then Farmer Brown's Boy saw the little can fast to Bobby's paw, and instantly he understood. "You poor little chap!" said he softly. "So this is the reason you didn't run! I guess it is a lucky thing that Bowser and I came along this way this morning. You poor little chap!"

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Cabbage Minus Odor.
A little piece of charcoal placed in the water in which cabbage is being cooked will prevent the odor from circulating through the house.

Breadcrumbs vs. Cracker crumbs.
Breadcrumbs are far better than cracker crumbs for croquettes. They will not absorb as much fat as the cracker crumbs and will brown far better.

Fall Draperies.
Unbleached muslin can be made into very attractive curtains by dyeing it to any desired shade. The cheapest quality may be used, as the dye seems to thicken up the material considerably.

A Laundry Button Box.
A small box placed conveniently close to the laundry tubs is handy to receive any buttons that may come off during the washing process. So often buttons are difficult to match and this little box will keep the laundress from becoming careless with an apparently small item.

Chicken Pie.
Select two young chickens, either fricassee or roast chickens have them carefully prepared and jointed, cook them until tender, adding a whole onion, a few celery leaves and a half bay leaf to the water for flavoring. Lift the chickens and let cool slightly, then remove the bones. Remove the fat from the gravy and thicken with white roux, then strain enough over the chicken to moisten it well, slice in a tablespoonful of truffles and a cupful of mushrooms that have been sautéed in butter. Line a deep dish with light short crust, turn in the chicken, add a little more of the gravy if there is room, then put on the top crust having a vent in it. Finish the edge with tines of a floured fork and bake until the crust is done to a good brown. Serve little molds of currant jelly with the pie.

NEW YORK.—Here and there, in a furred season, one comes today upon a steamer or sports coat looking all the smarter for having no fur at all. Such is a heavy coat of black Scotch woolen, trimmed only by a gray and black plaid lining of wool which turns back to form revers.

Mixed Drinks and the Pulse Would Tell the Story.

Dear editor:

SEE by the papers the other day where a student in some school in Colorado had made a great discovery, namely he had discovered a drink which you give it to a girl and as soon as she drinks it, you feel her pulse and if it beats faster than before, why that means she cares a good deal for who ever it is she is supposed to care for, but if the pulse beats at the same speed or slower, she don't care nothing about who ever it is. It looks like this student might get rich off his invention only it seems to me like it would be a whole lot more simpler if the gent who is interested would go right up to the girl in question and ask her pt. blank if she cares for him or don't care for him.

I forgot now what the prescription is, but it is bismuth and a couple of soft drinks mixed up.

Now I don't want to take no advantage of the Colorado boy, but if you have got to pry into a feminine heart by means of a potion why it seems to me like the best bet would be to get up a drink that don't only show whether she likes this certain one guy, but if she don't like him, who does she like? For inst. if I would be called in on a case to find out if a gal was fond of a certain party or no, why the first thing I would do would give her tests that would show who did she prefer to him.

The first thing I would give her a specially if she was a N. Y. gal would be a Manhattan cocktail and if it livened up her pulse that would show that her heart's desire was a boy that lived in Manhattan. If her pulse kept even or slowed up, I would give her a Bronx cocktail and find out if she was fond of somebody that lived in the Bronx. If her pulse did not speed up at this junction I would serve her with a old-fashioned cocktail and if she palpitated that would mean she was fond of some old-fashion guy that wears rubbers. If her pulse did not make no snappy answer to none of these tests I would try the following:

Mum's extra-dry—A increased pulse would mean either that she cares for a man that can't talk but when he does talk he is very dry, or else that her boy friend lives in Champaign and probably tends the University of Illinois.

Tom and Jerry—A increased pulse would mean that she is in love with a man named Tom or a man named Jerry and then all as you would half to do would be to pin her down to which is it. Poi Roger—If she responds you will know that she is in love with a Pole or a man named Roger.

Old Stuff. Scotch—If she responds you will know she is friendly in regards to a Scotchman or maybe a man named Scotch like Scotch Fitzgerald.

aid. If you try her out on some special brand like for inst. Usher's green stripes and her pulse flares up, that would mean that her preference is for a usher who wears a shirt with green stripes.

Bourbon—To find out if she is fond of a man from Kentucky or one of the Napoleon boys.

Rye—Maybe her sweetie is a boy from Rye, N. Y., or a man who has a rye neck or makes rye faces.

Punch—She may have a secret craving for Jack Dempsey or Geo. Carpentier the well known orchid man.

On acct. of the high cost of most of the above beverages it might be better to make the tests with soft beverages like for inst.—

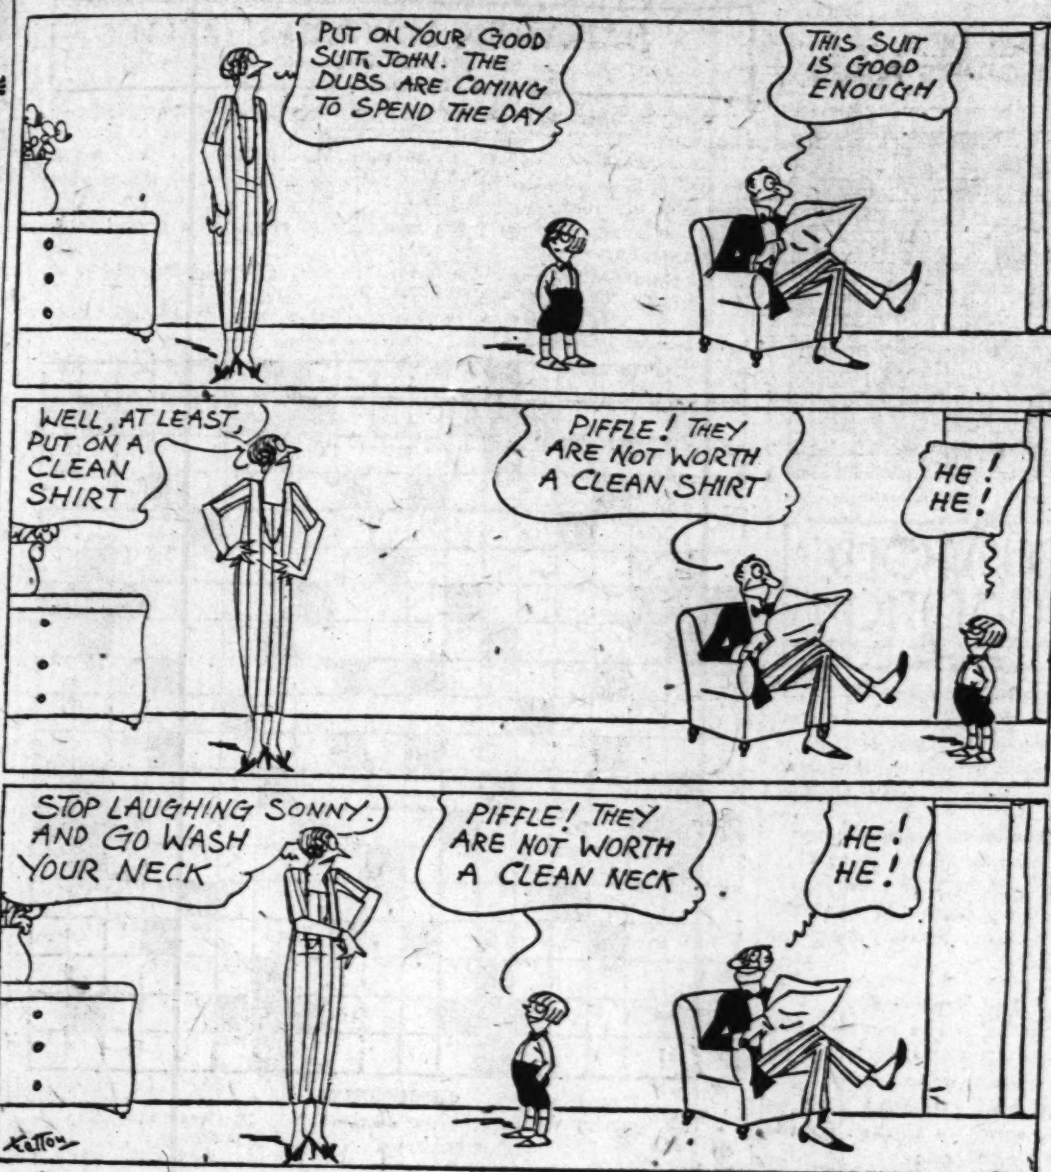

Tea—A increased pulse—beat would mean she was crazy about a man whose name began with a T maybe Thomas Lipton himself. Lemonade or Orangeade—This would show an affection for a man named Ade.

Pop—This would show an affection for a man generally known as Pop or maybe that is her name for him.

And so on. If the investigator has got the time and patience they shouldn't ought to be no trouble at all to find out the truth by these methods and the only drawback is in regards to who are you going to sell the information to after you get it because the party most interested probably knowed it already.

THE tax is now an open book. Where everyone can have a look; And rubber necks will don their specs And instantly go to it. For they will want to know, you know, How much was paid by so-and-so. And thereby learn just what they earn. And wonder how they do it.

Next Tuesday week's election day. So do not throw your vote away. It's up to you to settle who will steer the nation's schooner. For either John or Cal or Bob will be elected to the job. So shuck your coat and cast your vote—The earlier the sooner.

And if you'd see our city grow. Vote Yes by simply scratching No; We can't expand unless we land The seventh proposition. So do your duty at the polls. And soon we'll have a million souls. And you will see how quick we'll be Back in our old position.

WHAT'S THIS?
"Keg Party Planned." Sounds good, but there must be a catch in it somewhere. Anyway, they ought to have a barrel of fun. Maybe the Wets are going to orranize a new party to be known as the Keg party.

"Cool Summer Brings Butter Down a Dime." But a cold winter will send it up again.

Today is Navy day. Business of batten down the hatches and splicing the main brace with a beaker of bay rum.

Navy day in an inland town doesn't mean anything unless you are interested in airships.

TOO TRUE.
The man on the sandbox says that, win, lose or draw, the winner of the three-cornered fight a week from Tuesday will know that there has been an election.

The man who gives to a political campaign fund until it hurts has no idea how much it hurts until his man has been defeated.

Just like casting bread on the water and seeing it gobbled up by a shark.

The Velled Prophet during his annual visit to our city told us who was going to be elected President of the United States, but pledged us not to reveal the name until after Nov. 4.

We'd like to let our customers in on this, but aside from the fact that it would be violating a release it would encourage betting which we do not approve of where there is no element of chance.

No matter who wins it looks like the next Governor of Illinois will be elected by a small majority.

The stray vote doesn't seem to be causing a stampede from the hay wagon to the hand wagon.

VIOLENCE MARKS CLOSE OF BRITISH CAMPAIGN

PREMIER, WORN OUT,

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The last few days of strenuous election campaigning have had such a fatiguing effect upon Prime Minister MacDonald that he was forced today to cancel a scheduled address before a political meeting of his constituents and to spend the afternoon in bed. Although suffering from insomnia and fatigue, the Premier began a vigorous eve-of-election tour this morning, but was forced to go to bed after making one address.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Oct. 26.—Today, the last day of the election campaign, is being devoted to intensified canvassing and torrents of speeches by all the parties. Political tempers have been growing steadily hotter and show no sign of cooling.

Several meetings last night were marked by violent disturbances and the police in some instances were called in to help. The worst violence occurred outside a meeting hall in Battersea where a furious blow aimed at the Conservative candidate, Viscount Curzon, missed him but felled a companion unconscious. The three were ripped from Lord Curzon's automobile and the lamps were smashed.

The Russian affair, growing out of publication by the Foreign Office of the alleged Zinovieff letter to the British Communist party, has served to heighten the feeling that there is nothing to show whether or not it will have the damaging effect on Labor's chances.

The London newspapers, with the exception of the Laborite, Daily Herald, comment accordingly on Premier MacDonald's platform reference to the Russian incident, the chief of several charges being that the Premier himself blundered comically in handling the matter and now seeks to throw the blame on his subordinates. Complaint is also made that the Premier leaves the affair very obscure in many partic-

Others of the Laborite ministry comment publicly on the incident, several reiterating their conviction that the letter is a bogus document. Lord Chancellor Haldane, on the other hand, said last night he would be glad if its genuineness were disproved, but that on the balance of evidence the Foreign Office was right to treat it as genuine and deal with it seriously.

Thirty-two members of the secret mission left London suddenly for the continent on Sunday, according to the Daily Telegraph, the reason for the migration is unknown, the paper adds, but the party is believed to have included a number of Bolshevik agitators.

At other meetings, the Premier has repeated the explanation he gave at Cardiff and replying to remarks leveled against him that he had been talking about the Russian treaty while the Zinovieff affair was going on, said:

"Certainly, and we will continue to talk about it. It is all very well for people to indulge in emotional ravings about Russia, but if we are out for the consolidation of European peace you cannot afford to leave Russia out of the consolidation.

"If you gather European nations around a table to construct upon a solid foundation a system to preserve peace and Russia is not there, then had better pack your baggage and go home because there can be no consolidation of European peace with Russia as a pariah state. You may desert the Russian State, but you cannot adopt methods that we can. God bless Russia for good or ill, and we cannot overlook that cri-
